Soviet Spies Nabbed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Information provided by a Polish defector has led to the arrest of some important Soviet-bloc agents operating against the U.S. It was learned Monday.

The defector is Michal Goleniewski, 41, a Polish-born agent who came to the United States in 1961. He had been in contact with U.S. intelligence agents in Poland since 1958.

In some cases it was learned information supplied by the defector resulted in the arrests of important Soviet agents.

The New York Journal-American reported Monday that a Soviet secret police defector by the name of Michal Goleniewski has informed U.S. officials that Moscow has placed active "cells" in the Central Intelligence Agency and the state department. It was learned, however, that information in the Journal-American story was not consistent with information the defector had given the U.S.

Cyprus May Accept UN Plan for Peace

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Brazil and four other countries proposed Monday that the United Nations Security Council send an international peace-keeping force to Cyprus to cope with the threat of war in the eastern Mediterranean. A Western source expressed belief it would win council approval.

The five countries introduced a resolution recommending also that UN Secretary-General U Thant name a mediator to help resolve differences between warring Greek and Turkish Cypriots on the strategic island republic.

Bicultural Luncheon Plenty of Goodwill

The B.C. government has pledged 100 per cent co-operation to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, Premier Bennett said yesterday.

He made the statement after he and most of the cabinet played host at a Union Club luncheon to commission co-chairmen Andre Laurendeau and Davidson Dunton.

MET PREMIERS
The two commission members were here on the far-western swing of a tour in which they have met the premiers of all but one of the provinces.

Purpose of the tour was to gain pledges of provincial co-operation and open communications with the heads of provincial governments.

In spite of earlier indications that Premier Bennett might not be a staunch supporter of the commission's cause, the meeting apparently went well. Mr. Dunton and Mr. Laurendeau said Premier Bennett and Education Minister Peterson had "pledged all we wanted."

SPLENDID PEOPLE
The premier in turn referred to his guests as "splendid people."

"If all the goodwill between us today were spread across Canada," he said after the luncheon, "we'd have no problems in this country."

SENSE HUMOR
"What this country needs is a sense of humor and goodwill."

He recalled his New Brunswick boyhood where he was brought up with French Canadians, and pointed out to reporters that his first partner in the hardware business had been a French Canadian.

"Do you speak French?" a reporter asked him.

LITTLE DUTCH
"No, but I can talk a little Dutch at times," he quipped.

Mr. Dunton said it had been obvious during the luncheon that Premier Bennett believes in a stronger confederation.

The cabinet entourage which had joined the premier for lunch had been the largest so far of any province, commission officials said.

CO-OPERATION
The two commissioners said they had requested to provincial governments has been for co-operation in finding to what extent the French language and culture is part of the education system. B.C. had pledged this through Mr. Peterson.

Mr. Laurendeau said he had been surprised at the extent to which French is taught in B.C.

RACE EXTREMISTS
Both commissioners said they had received threatening letters and telephone calls from race extremists since taking up their duties, but they hadn't taken them seriously.

Two Days Adrift On a Log

TOFINO—A Vancouver man was found chilled but unhurt yesterday, after spending two days drifting in the sea astraddle a log. William Young, a catering contractor, left Bedwell River, 20 miles from here, at 4 p.m. Saturday.

The same afternoon his 35-foot cabin cruiser struck a submerged log and sank. He reached another floating log and hung on—all night Saturday, all day Sunday and part of Monday.

The Tofino lifeboat crew was notified by Young's wife when he did not return Monday. The crew found Young drifting in Cypress Bay.

Hospital officials in Tofino say he is suffering from cold and exposure, but is not seriously hurt.

HEATHMAN LOCATED

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

Charles Heathman has been found "elsewhere in Canada."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner made the announcement in the legislature yesterday.

Heathman, who once confessed to murder and then denied it, is outside the province, Mr. Bonner said later in a corridor interview, and can't be brought back in spite of the fact he broke a B.C. Mental Hospitals Act parole.

In his statement to the House, he said Heathman had been located and was "under surveillance."

He refused to tell reporters where in Canada police had found him, but there were unconfirmed reports it was in the east.

12 DAYS AGO
Heathman vanished from the Lower Mainland home of an officially-appointed sponsor 12 days ago, and his disappearance was immediately reported to the authorities.

The attorney-general's department issued a search and locate order to RCMP and a continent-wide hunt was launched. There were no instructions to apprehend him.

BEYOND BORDERS
Officials explained then and confirmed yesterday that jurisdiction of the Mental Health Act, under which Heathman was paroled, does not extend beyond the provincial border.

Heathman was twice sentenced to the gallows for the 1960 sex-slaying of 10-year-old Vernon newboy Donald Otley, and later was set free by the B.C. Appeal Court, which quashed the conviction.

Later he made what was purported to be a full confession to a Vancouver newspaper and

Queen's Midwife Moves In

LONDON (Reuters)—The midwife who will assist in the delivery of Queen Elizabeth's fourth child, expected sometime this month, moved into Buckingham Palace last night.

The court spokesman who made the announcement yesterday said it was "no sudden summons."

"These things are always arranged well in advance," he said.

He added that the midwife, Sister (registered nurse) Helen Rowe, was moving into the palace "according to plan."

Good Fairies at Work In Irish Post Office?

TORONTO (CP)—George Hache doesn't know whether he's more flattered or amazed.

A postcard arrived for him four days after it was mailed in Ireland, bearing no address except his name—spelled incorrectly—and his street name—also spelled incorrectly.

The card, addressed to George Hache of Seely Drive, was not directed to any city or even country, but arrived at his Seely Drive home without even the familiar post office directive asking for more complete addresses.

King Paul Dying?

Afflicted by blood clots after a stomach operation, King Paul of Greece was reported last night in a worsening condition. A hasty visit to the royal palace by Premier George Papandreu and the wording of medical bulletins raised fears for the life of the 83-year-old monarch.

Accused Nazi Nabbed

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—An accused Nazi war criminal charged with complicity in the "mercy killings" of 15,000 persons during the Second World War has been arrested here and now faces extradition to West Germany.

An Argentine police spokesman reported Monday that Dr. Bernhard Böhne, who fled West Germany after he was released from pre-trial detention on health grounds last summer, was arrested Thursday in a Buenos Aires suburb not far from where he had been living with his sister.

West German embassy press attache Gerald Dahms told reporters the embassy requested Böhne's extradition "several weeks ago."

Unnecessary Risk

Cancel Queen's Quebec Visit Montreal Papers Advise

MONTREAL (CP)—In the week since separatist Marcel Chaput told a Toronto audience Queen Elizabeth's life would be endangered if she visited Quebec as planned this fall, some voices have been raised in the province questioning the wisdom of going ahead with the visit.

Two Montreal newspapers, Le Devoir and La Presse, have said editorially the visit is unnecessary, risks provoking trouble from militant separatists, and ought to be cancelled.

Paul-Emile Robert, president of the Montreal St. Jean Baptiste Society, said in an interview Monday: "It is still too early to say what is the wiser course of action, but it seems at present there is a possible risk of trouble if the visit is held."

Gerard Pelletier, editor-in-chief of La Presse, said also in an interview, "The visit has no character of urgency or necessity and is clearly an act of imprudence. It would create an unnecessary risk of stirring up trouble and exposing the Queen to insult and embarrassment."

POLITICAL BEARING

Le Devoir, in an editorial by Paul Sauriol, said the royal visit "may have a political bearing," since certain people would be counting on a warm welcome to prove that Quebec is loyal to the Crown and to Confederation.

"... In this sense one can speak of provocation, since it is a superfluous and useless celebration. The best thing would be to cancel an event that threatens to be more harm than good."

La Presse, in an editorial by Vincent Prince, said Mr. Chaput may have exaggerated in saying the Queen's life could be endangered "but no police cordon can stop invective and insults."

Twenty Pieces of Silver

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Jacques Schiffer, a fiery New York defence lawyer, wound up his argument at James R. Hoffa's jury-tampering trial Monday by throwing a flatful of coins on the prosecution table.

"Here," he said, while the jurors gaped, "take your 30 pieces of silver and share them. You've earned them."

Schiffer, representing one of five men on trial with Hoffa, obviously was referring to

Judas' betrayal of Christ for 30 pieces of silver. Throughout the trial, Schiffer has declared that Edward G. Parlin, a Baton Rouge, La., Teamsters union official, testified against Hoffa to "buy his peace with the government." (See Page 2.)

Government lawyers, who sit a few feet from the jury, refused to have anything to do with the coins. Reporters were allowed to count the dimes, nickels and quarters, which totalled $2.45.

There were only 20 pieces.

"You an' Mrs. Flounders must come again soon, it's not MANY people that Andy takes to."

Heathman Located

then he repudiated it after publication.

About 20 months ago he was committed to Essondale Mental Hospital after being deemed dangerous to be at large.

WON PAROLE

Recently he won parole from Essondale when a medical appeal board found him fit for conditional discharge.

His case became an issue in the legislature yesterday when Mrs. Lois Hagen (NDP—Grand Forks-Greenwood) asked during debate on the attorney-general's estimates how society was to be protected.

54 CONVICTIONS

She said Heathman had a record of 54 previous convictions and became the central figure in a brutal murder.

"He was placed under light-

I would say very light—six months' probation.

"He is loose on society again, and the attorney-general says there is nothing he can do."

She said the Heathman case had cost taxpayers a great deal of money, but now they were unable to get protection.

"Something is wrong somewhere."

She quoted U.S. FBI chief Edgar Hoover as saying, "Gentle sex criminal laws are stupid."

KISSES TO REPLY

Rising immediately to reply, Mr. Bonner said there was no hint of sex offences in any of the 54 convictions referred to by Mrs. Hagen, although sex had been a factor in the death of the Otley boy.

But, he continued, Heathman had been acquitted of the Otley murder by due process of law.

RIGHTS, PRIVILEGES

He told the legislature it is impossible to separate the rights and privileges of society from those of the individual.

If the customary safeguards are not present for one man "of unsavory reputation," then they couldn't be present for anyone else.

"The system either works without political discretion or it doesn't work at all."

GONE OVERBOARD

Publicity over the Heathman case had "gone completely overboard," he said, but he didn't blame legislative reporters.

But at the same time, Heathman had been the victim of "one of the most remarkable... invasions of privacy which it would be possible to imagine."

Heathman, he pointed out, had repudiated the newspaper confession and had been declared fit to rejoin society by the same psychiatrist who had termed him dangerous.

"It would be a remarkable man indeed whose mind would not be affected by two convictions and the time he spent on death row."

EVERY TYPE

"If ever there was an example of a man in an unprotected position as of right now, bearing every type of public scorn ever heaped on anyone, it is this man."

"His position must touch anyone who thinks about it." Mr. Bonner said that if he and others in his position were not concerned with the rights of the individual as part of their concern over the rights of society, then society was in a bad way.

Hyde Wins Bike Race

Terry Hyde, piloting a 250 Cotton, Sunday won the main event in the first major scramble of the year for the Victoria Motorcycle Club.

Hyde caught pace-setting Vern Amor before the half-way mark of the 15-lap event over a course almost a half-mile long on William Head Road. Amor was second and Wes Morten third.

Ernie Hill, on a 500 BSA, won the consolation main event while the three heats were won by Hyde, Amor and John Davis, in that order.

Lots of Goodwill

Police had never been notified of the threats.

"I even feel safe in Montreal," joked Mr. Laurendeau. Mr. Duntion said the communications which give him the most concern are those which refer to these "damn" Frenchmen or Englishmen.

Mr. Laurendeau said the recent arms thefts by the ALQ in Quebec and such things as extremist statements from within his province as well as from the rest of Canada were not making the commission's task any easier.

NEWS COPY

A veteran newsmen, who is currently editor of the Montreal daily Le Devoir, Mr. Laurendeau said it was unfortunate that only inflammatory acts and statements in both ethnic spheres make current news copy, but he understood the situation.

Both men repeated several times during two press conferences in Victoria yesterday that it is not the intention of the commission to ram unfamiliar languages down the throats of individuals who are never likely to use them.

NO REASON

Mr. Duntion said where a segment of population is largely English there was no reason why the people should be coerced into learning French, and vice versa.

Mr. Laurendeau said the commission was set up because it was thought that Canada's future might be in jeopardy unless an effort at national unity was made.

IN JEOPARDY

Did he think Canada was in jeopardy?

"Well, I accepted the job on the commission," he replied.

So far, commission officials said, they have been notified of 22 briefs originating in B.C. But before they hold hearings at which briefs will be formally entered, they want to hold informal hearings throughout the nation.

In the spring the commission will visit Victoria and other B.C. points just to hear the opinions of ordinary people.

HOW LONG

They couldn't say how long it will be before their task is completed, but wouldn't rule out the possibility it may take three years.

Premier Bennett's cordial welcome to the commission and his offer of co-operation came as a mild surprise to some observers who recalled remarks he made at the B.C. Social Credit League convention last fall and during the summer election campaign.

NOT IN FAVOR

At the convention he said he was not in favor of having all federal, civil servants learn French and that he was opposed to any special treatment for Quebec.

He also suggested that in view of B.C.'s heavy Chinese population it might be desirable to include the Chinese language.

During the campaign, and later, he vigorously opposed the tax-equalization grants to Quebec which totalled more than $80,000,000 last year.

'Spouse Hunt' Urged To Cut Down Welfare

The government should set up a team of investigators to track down deserting husbands, Gordon Dowling (NDP Burnaby) suggested in the legislature yesterday.

An organized "spouse hunt" in Ontario resulted in the location of 41 per cent of 1,634 erring husbands, he said. This resulted in 330 families being taken off the province's welfare rolls, of $150 a month per family.

"It is costing up millions of dollars over the years in social assistance," Mr. Dowling told the House.

But, Arthur Turner (NDP Vancouver East) said social workers have told him it is cheaper to pay the social assistance money than track down the missing males.

Dizziness Alone Doesn't Mean Person Has Meniere's Disease

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD
Dear Dr. Molner: My wife, 73, thinks she has Meniere's disease. From time to time she has intense dizzy spells. —M. L. W.

Dear Doctor: I have Meniere's disease and have been told that it is always incurable. I am on a low salt diet and am getting neotic acid, but still have two to four attacks a week.—J. G.

I cannot agree that Meniere's disease is always "incurable"—sometimes it is and sometimes it isn't.

OTHER AILMENT

Furthermore, in my opinion too many people think they have Meniere's disease when they don't; they actually have some other kind of ear ailment. They then give up too soon, and just decide to get along as best they can with it, instead of perhaps tracing the trouble to something else, and having it treated.

Don't assume that recurring dizzy spells (vertigo) are necessarily Meniere's disease. The first letter today is an example.

DEFINITE GROUP

With Meniere's disease a definite group of symptoms must be present: Dizziness, in which objects seem to move; hearing is decreased or lost; either a low or high tone of ringing in the ears. Along with these are usually nausea, vomiting and sweating. Just one of these symptoms does not constitute Meniere's disease.

NOT KNOWN

What causes the disease is not definitely known, but it is thought to be either a hemorrhage or accumulation of fluid in the structures of the middle ear.

Treatment? Salt restriction to reduce water retention in the body; drugs on the order of nicotinic acid or histamine to alter the circulation; dramatic or other drugs to prevent nausea; correction of focal infections in nose or throat—all of these can be at the root of the trouble. In extreme cases, sometimes surgery is required, but this usually involves complete loss of hearing, and therefore should not be undertaken until more conservative treatments have been exhausted.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible for an adult to have Cushing's B Fever? I have read that it is prevalent in infants. My father's doctor recently diagnosed this as his trouble. —MRS. W. U. A.

Cushing's is a virus which, among other things, can produce symptoms resembling polio. Yes, it can attack adults—just as the polio virus can. Remember, it was once called "infantile paralysis."

$800 Funeral Cost Denied by Mortician

VANCOUVER (CP)—The president of the B.C. Society of Morticians yesterday denied a report that it costs more than $800 each for most funerals in the province.

Vast Snow Clean-Up Starts Again

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—For the seventh time this winter, the highway crews in St. John's and other communities on Newfoundland's Avalon Peninsula have begun the gigantic job of cleaning up after a major snowfall.

A blizzard which struck the southern half of the province late Saturday and early Sunday dropped more than 16 inches of snow. High winds whipped it into drifts as high as 20 feet. Some motorists were still hunting Monday for cars hidden in drifts on city streets.

Water Street, the capital's main thoroughfare, still had only one-way traffic late Monday but highway crews were expected to have two-way traffic on almost all streets by noon today.

Hands Off Oookpik Says Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Northern Affairs Minister Laing has warned manufacturers to leave Oookpik alone.

Oookpik is Eskimo for Arctic owl and also the name of a fuzzy, furry toy bird that has been adopted by government as an international trade symbol for Canada.

Mr. Laing, replying in the Commons to George Chatterton (PC, Esquimalt-Saanichton) said the name and model is being copyrighted.

The Fort Chimo Eskimo Co-operative, which developed the Oookpik, is in the process of licensing commercial manufacturers to make the little bird.

"I certainly hope there will be no attempt to defeat their initiative and ingenuity by unfair competition from unauthorized manufacturers," he added.

His statement came after Alex Macdonald, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Vancouver East, quoted a figure of $837 after making inquiries of six funeral homes.

Mr. Macdonald, who said his figure included cemetery plot, marker, flowers, minister and mortician's bill, charged funeral directors employ pressure to obtain higher prices.

Mr. Clark denied this and said his society condemns hucksterism and high pressure. It was instrumental in ridding B.C. of door-to-door funeral salesmen, he said.

Last week the family of 19-year-old Tom Brown of Vancouver, who drowned in a boating accident, built a coffin for $7 and had the body cremated in a simple procedure that involved neither a minister nor a mortician. The total cost was $58.

ONLY COFFIN VARIES

Mr. Clark said the only item that varies from one funeral to another is the coffin, for which wholesale prices range between $42 to $600.

Mr. Macdonald had used his political position in an attempt to dictate a materialistic attitude toward a religious, social and psychological complex he doesn't understand, Mr. Clark said.

"All over the world, man is a being who buries his dead with ceremony. Only the customs differ."

NON-CHRISTIAN

The mortician's statement said anything that strips the beauty, sentiment or idealism from the human personality even in death is a step in non-Christian communism.

If a person does not agree with the services offered by morticians he has the alternative of a funeral similar to Brown's or a funeral through the B.C. Memorial Society. The society offers its members inexpensive funerals, usually costing under $200.

SEVENTH WEEK

Yesterday started the seventh week of the government's fifth case against the 52-year-old Teamster leader. Two earlier trials ended in mistrials; in two others he was acquitted. If convicted this time, Hoffa could get 15 years in prison.

The case is expected to go to the jury late today or Wednesday.

VOICE OF HOFFA

Neal, a young justice department lawyer who also prosecuted the 1962 case, said that in the alleged jury tampering "the hands were in the hands of (the other defendants) but the voice was the voice of Hoffa—the one man who stood to gain."

grip of a 16th century executioner's device if they are convicted.

Three American men, one American woman, a British woman and a Spanish woman, are accused of the robbery and murder of Barcelona furniture dealer Francisco Rovinsky Clossas. His body was found in his office with wounds inflicted with a knife and a meat-tenderizing hammer.

If the Spanish court finds them guilty of "murder with robbery," the three men and the Spanish woman will be sentenced to the garrote and the American woman and British woman will receive long prison terms.

Spanish criminal law specifies the garrote, a metal collar tightened by a screw until it breaks the vertebrae, as the form of execution in criminal cases involving capital punishment.

LUDWIG ERHARD

Brandt Playing Into Red Hands?

BONN (UPI)—Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's supporters last night told West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt he may be playing into the hands of the Communists by negotiating with them for Easter passes through the wall.

Erhard's Christian Democrats accused Brandt of opening a breach in the Western front which may permit the Communists to make political advances.

FARLEY PLANNED

Erhard and Brandt are to meet later this week in an attempt to resolve their differences and to decide which man bears final responsibility for determining policy.

The federal government and the West Berlin administration agreed to accept passes for West Berliners at Christmas time.

POLITICAL ERROR

Since then, Erhard has decided the decision to permit about 240 East German postal clerks to enter West Berlin to distribute the passes was a political error.

The chancellor believes this action came too close to political recognition of East Germany as a separate state and wants negotiations, now temporarily in-

Ogilvy Sees Son Born

LONDON (UPI)—The birth of Princess Alexandra's nine-pound, six-ounce baby boy on Saturday was watched by her husband, Angus Ogilvy, it was learned here.

Court sources said they believed it was the first time a father had seen a royal baby born.

The 35-year-old business executive never left his 27-year-old wife's bedside from the moment he called the doctors to come and get Princess Alexandra until the baby was weighed.

Princess Alexandra's doctors report she and her son are making excellent progress.

NEWBURY, England (UPI)—A thief who stole 22 organ pipes from two churches near here a few months ago has now taken 13 pipes from a third church in the area. Police theorized the thief may be building his own organ with the stolen pipes as they have advised other vicars to keep their church doors locked.

Not So Easy

THE DIFFICULTY of finding a peace-keeping UN force to intervene in Cyprus denies the easy assumption often expressed that for "brush-fire" conflicts the thing to do is send a UN force into action.

To begin with the UN is not organized for this purpose and never will be until cohesion is its hallmark instead of the political wrangling that hampers its work.

Few member states have shown any desire to provide troop contingents for Cyprus, nor has Canada, in spite of the well-known Pearson preference for UN action in such cases, been pressing the case in this instance. Not without reason Canada while prepared to play its part in any such force, wants a united display of willingness by other nations.

There is the cost of such a force, also, to bedevil U Thant's efforts in this direction. The idea that only the countries which provide the men should pay the shot robs any such force of its real UN character. And there is no likelihood that France and the Soviet Union, to name but two, would contribute to the expense; they have refused to bear any share of previous UN peace-keeping forces.

Since the Western nations have no desire to see Russia get a footing in the Mediterranean, either, this splits the UN camp in two and prejudices the establishment of a Cyprus formation. In all probability also the Soviet Union would attempt to undo the work of such a force for its own political gain.

A UN force is, or should be, a collective responsibility but the divergent line-ups of the world organization sharply underline the difficulties of collective action even when world peace is threatened as it is because of the divisive nature of the Turko-Greek Cypriot nation.

Something may yet eventuate from the UN this week leading to the prospect of preventing open conflict between Greece and Turkey, ironically both members of the UN and thus pledged to keep the peace, but enough has been evident to prove that the easy thesis of a UN police force is more theoretical than real. And until the UN becomes a world body in fact as well as in appearance "brush-fires" will always create the situation that confronts it as it seeks to harness strength and unity towards a problem like Cyprus.

Another Era Gone

BRITAIN'S decision to buy American nuclear strike warplanes for the Royal Navy and foreign-made helicopters for the army has come as a serious blow to the British aircraft industry and to British national pride generally.

From almost the beginning of the air age British airplane design has always led the world, especially in the realm of military aircraft. In the 1914-18 war it was British-made fighters and bombers which almost single-handedly shot the Kaiser's air force out of the sky and carried the war into his fatherland.

In the 1939-45 war British-designed aircraft again demonstrated their superiority over all others. Not only did British fighters fly faster with more manoeuvrability and fire-power than others, but British bombers flew further and faster with bigger bombloads than those of any other nation anywhere in the world.

Britain still led the world at the end of the war in developing the jet engine and producing high-speed military and civil aircraft of all types. In recent years she has produced the first operational vertical takeoff fighter-bomber, perfected a V-bomber force considered by many international military experts as being the best of its kind in the world, and pioneered the way for high-altitude supersonic passenger flight.

With such a record the British public—along with their leading aircraft designers and engineers—may be forgiven for resenting the decision of their defence department to purchase foreign-made planes for their armed services.

Sadly for Britain, another era of greatness appears to have passed.

Unfair Exclusion

THE MANITOBA legislature has turned down the proposal of an opposition member that tenants, not only property owners, be allowed to vote on municipal money bylaws. The idea, however, is certain to emerge again, and not only in that province. One might wish it a prompt appearance and a better reception on the British Columbia law-making scene.

Particularly is this true in Victoria and Vancouver where there is such a marked trend to apartment dwelling (the most economical residential expansion, be it noted, from the civic point of view in regard to extension of services) and where tenants form such a large part of the citizenry.

The notion that these renters are a relatively irresponsible and unstable element who would load heavy expense on the ratepayers and evade the consequences is out of harmony with the times; the Winnipeg Free Press describes it more bluntly as "plain old-fashioned nonsense."

Tenants for the most part are probably not a whit more apt to shift around and move to other communities than are owners, in this day when many families progress from home to home according to their changing needs and living standards. Nor do they escape property taxes, or a rise in these as a consequence of the approval of the money bylaw for some civic development. The taxes must, as few tenants can fail to recognize, be included in the rent, even though they may not feel the burden as acutely nor increases as immediately as the ratepayers faced directly with annual tax bills.

There is a reasonable case therefore why they should be given the same rights in municipal elections as property-owners, and not be treated as second-class citizens and fly-by-nights. Most of them have a very definite stake in their communities.

A good case anywhere—but in British Columbia there is a further reason to let them have their say on major capital expenditures by their cities. This is that they do not have the benefit of the sizable and growing home-owners' grant from the provincial government. The theory in the past has been that renters would recklessly vote in the affirmative on any costly improvement. In this province, denied the same tax relief as the owners, they might well be even more cautious than the latter.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships,

By TOM TAYLOR

AS I thought it might, mention herein a few days ago about the Boys' Brigade has stirred memories among my readers. Like wine adjudged to improve with age, youth is all the better for being looked back on.

It shines somewhat differently then, proving the Shavian dictum that youth is wasted on young people.

Meaning I suppose that they don't know how to appreciate it. They haven't yet lost it, you see.

Anyway one reader writes in fond terms of his membership in the 76th London Company of the BB. Obviously like yours truly he recalls his pillbox cap with some affection—although he tells me it is going out of fashion, being replaced by a forage cap—and "Thanks God" for this early training ground. Its influence served him well in his adulthood.

Another reader telephoned to express equal pleasure at being reminded of his BB days, and in the expanded way conversation has brought in some other early diversions. Such as the penny-dreadfuls of youth's Victorian omnivorous youthful reading habits.

Actually these best television into a cocked hat, but that is another story.

The only connection I can surmise between the BB and the Gem, Boys' Own Paper, Union Jack and the like, is that probably all or most BB boys followed the doings of Tom Merry, Tinker and Pedro, et al, with avid interest.

They leavened school lessons and BB training with their weekly episodes of unspoiled fun in an innocent age.

My caller rebuked me slightly, however, for not recalling the Marvel, the home ground of Jack, Sam and Pete, in past series into the penny-dreadful menage.

All I could say was that I had forgotten this redoubtable trio, as doubtless my memory has grown dim about other delectable characters of those early reading days.

If I now remember rightly Jack was an Englishman, Sam a "colonial" of some type—his birthplace escapes me—and Pete was of a hue now much to the global fore, a circumlocution which often invited the spirited defence of the Negro pal by Jack and Sam.

And, too, for he was a good sporty chap was Pete, the sympathy of the many Marvel readers, I'm sure. The color bar doesn't afflict people until they grow up, and Pete was one of the penny-dreadful heroes that schoolboys took to their bosoms.

The BB for one, either, didn't draw any lines about creeds and colors that I can recall.

For that matter these so-called penny dreadfuls were anything but dreadful, and they gave a fillip to the reading habits by which all adolescents may enrich their lives. Once bitten a bookworm does not give up readily.

Nor, as these few remarks may indicate, have Pete, Sexton Blake, Harry Wharton, Get-There Gaudin, and all the others, entirely faded from the minds of their once-eager admirers.

They have stood the test of time well, and as with the BB that must be accounted greatly in their favor.

Ottawa Offbeat

WHEN Dalton Camp, the energetic, young (43) Toronto advertising executive, was elected president of the Progressive Conservative Party, he just may have bitten off more than he can chew.

In his many interviews, he has said he has two basic aims:

1. To heal the breach and reconcile whatever differences there were between Conservative Leader Diefenbaker and certain elements in the party who like to label themselves as "The Intellectuals."
2. To erase what he says has been the completely false image of the party as anti-intellectual or anti-philosophical.

One of his difficulties will be the lack of ready communication now between the party organization which he, as president, heads, and the Conservative parliamentary caucus composed of the MPs and Senators.

They now, for the first time in many years, are clearly separate identities, and Mr. Camp, the first president in an equally long time who is not and never has been an elected, nor even appointed member of the parliamentary caucus, firmly believes this is only as it should be.

The way things already are shaping up, this division may only increase the obvious schizophrenia from which the party continues suffering. For, generally speaking, the members of the parliamentary caucus are the practical, working politicians whose knowledge has been clearly demonstrated by their very presence in the Commons and Senate.

The MPs wouldn't be there if they didn't know the political realities of winning elections. And the same goes for many of the senators who are either former MPs gone to their pensioned reward, or professional party men who have laid their money or their sweat on the line getting others elected.

And the parliamentary caucus is vociferously and overwhelmingly pro-Diefenbaker.

Not so, it still turns out, some for the least extremist wing of that element in the party which unflinchingly admits to being the self-proclaimed "Intellectuals." And they haven't won any elections.

President Camp already is having his troubles with the extremists on both sides. But it will be the "Intellectuals" who will give him his hardest time.

The worst he can say, up to now, of the really swinging Diefenbaker partisans in the parliamentary caucus, is that they may be just a mile cautious of his approach, and could be dragging their feet in whatever planning he may be doing to organize a party "Thinkers' Conference."

Some of them remember such a conference at Port Hope back in 1942, and recall that it did little, if anything, to return them to power. For they had to wait another 15 years until John Diefenbaker led them to victory, a scant three months after they gave him the leadership.

They remember, too, that the Liberals had such a "Thinkers' Conference" at Queen's University, in Kingston, in 1960, and still took three years to squeak back into office.

The Diefenbaker partisans are in much more of a hurry than that.

But this lack of enthusiasm for the new approach by the party's parliamentary caucus is a small irritation for President Camp compared with the big trouble that could be confronting him among the extremists of "The Intellectuals."

Item: "One of the 'Thinkers' attended the opening of Parliament and stamped angrily around Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton's reception loudly proclaiming that if "Diefenbaker doesn't go, I'll shoot him myself." This kind of talk in mixed political company, in front of Conservatives AND Liberals and all manner of visiting political firemen. And this member of "The Intellectuals," far from being a party nobody, was, in fact, a former organizational "wheel" and still may be.

Item: Another of these "way out" thinkers has circulated a letter among at least some far-from-unimpaired party supporters, suggesting that the only way the Conservatives can get out of opposition and into power is "to give Diefenbaker the Oswald treatment."

Trouble with the Extremists

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

These are only two recent and glaring examples of the schizo-extremists. That this mad kind of thing can happen out in the open for people to see and hear may give some indication of the frighteningly difficult job facing President Camp.

He will almost have to do something about them before he can hope to get anywhere with his "New Port Hope Conference."

To that political skill session he hopes to draw what he describes as the "most receptive Conservatives" and have them talk and plan with "the most informed and articulate experts on Canada's national problems."

He doesn't identify anybody in either group.

His aim would be to reaffirm what he terms "Conservative philosophy."

The way he sees it, politics have changed so swiftly—by the past 15 years that it is urgently necessary for the party and its supporters to re-examine themselves.

"We have to see the value of the party in society," he says, "for it's no longer just good enough to beat the Liberals and seize power."

He views present political development as the making of Canadian history, in which the intellectual centres of the country should be interested and even involved, so they can encourage philosophical development and pass on findings to future generations of students.

His own personal political philosophy combines the intellectual approach with a firm grasp of the practicalities of politics. Sounds good.

But can he sell it, especially to the wild-eyed extremists on either side?

Prudent Man of Business

By RHAUN HERRON

IN our latest series of interviews with famous writers about their work, we begin with William Shakespeare, the dramatist. Mr. Shakespeare's work is well known to most of our readers and has recently been the subject of speculative study by Al Lennie Roust, the Harvard historian. Mr. Roust is our interviewer in this issue. This year we celebrate Mr. Shakespeare's 400th birthday. He is still remarkably robust.

Mr. Shakespeare is married. He lives in Stratford, England. He lives in London. He has declined to be moved. He refused to discuss the ups and downs of his varied career but confirmed to Mr. Roust that he had once been a parking lot attendant at the Globe Theatre. Mr. Roust chose to begin his interview at this point:

A.L.R.: Now, we know about the parking lot job but what else do we know? Why do you keep your life such a hidden thing?

W.S.: I should have thought a fellow like you would understand that. Nothing attracts scholars and critics like a mystery. The less you tell them the more they write about you. You're pretty good at it yourself. You fellows keep me in business.

A.L.R.: Are you resentful of scholars because of your own schooling?

W.S.: What you really mean is my lack of schooling. What have I got to resent? Sure I'm a dropout. But where is Chris Marlowe today with his varsity background? His decomposition smells of strong ale. He got to university but boozing and bawling got to him. I'm still here.

A.L.R.: Why didn't you stay in school?

W.S.: With my old man? He was so busy running Stratford he ruined us. Then I rushed Ann Hathaway and I just had to find work.

A.L.R.: What was your inspiration?

W.S.: Money.

A.L.R.: But your literary inspiration ...?

W.S.: Money. You'll notice that the best writers always make lots of it.

A.L.R.: And all those great chronicles of history?

W.S.: They're war plays. There was a market for them. Everybody knew how to beat the Spaniard or subdue the Irish without leaving town. I wrote those plays for the military Mittys who had the price of admission in their pouches and wanted to hear themselves rallying their troops. That's why people watch "Combat" on television today. Same market.

A.L.R.: And "The Taming of the Shrew" ... what set you off there?

W.S.: Have you ever been an absentee husband, Mr. Roust? And then you go home for a visit? Ann couldn't read but my, she had an adult vocabulary!

A.L.R.: That ought to lead to the Dark Lady of the Sonnets. Who is she, Mr. Shakespeare?

W.S.: Then why ask damn fool questions?

A.L.R.: She's real, then?

W.S.: O boy.

A.L.R.: And not just a literary convention?

W.S.: There's nothing conventional about Darkie.

A.L.R.: You have created the richest gallery of women in English literature.

W.S.: ... In any literature.

A.L.R.: Are they all cut from whole cloth? Except the Dark Lady and Kate, of course, who according to you are from life.

W.S.: Writers don't make things up, Mr. Roust. They don't invent people either. Every writer who says he does is a liar. I knew every one of the little darlings.

A.L.R.: Are you likely to tell us anything about your relations with them?

W.S.: I'm Shakespeare. He's Miller.

W.S.: With actors, good. With writers, bad.

A.L.R.: Why?

W.S.: I was a good actor in my day but lots of them were better. Nobody needed to be jealous. But the scribblers—what could they do? They couldn't do better. They had a better start and they made it rough for me as long as they could. But I made money and I made no trouble. All I ever killed was a deer or a hare. Ben Jonson killed (Gabriel) Spencer, Watson killed Bradley, Marlowe got himself killed in a drunken brawl and Tom Kyd got himself tortured.

I kept my nose clean and wrote the best scripts. That's hard to forgive. The truth is, Roust, that I'm a very shrewd square, but it paid off and the arty people don't like a square genius.

A.L.R.: What about Robert Greene? Didn't you want to kill him for his attacks on you?

W.S.: No. A man with a mouth as wide as his gnaws himself to death. Greene on Shakespeare is like that professional egotist, Igor Stravinsky, on Benjamin Britten. He writes on Britten like an asp and on Shakespeare like a lover. Leave him to time and his own teeth. Where's Greene now? I haven't seen him played for about 350 years.

A.L.R.: You make it sound as if you are a prudent man of business who sat down and wrote for the market.

W.S.: Of course, I'm a prudent man of business. I'm like Shaw and Dickens, and Scott and Priestly and Trollope and Arthur Miller—we all drove hard bargains and we all made money. We weren't writing for our health. We met the market.

A.L.R.: What advice would you give to a young writer today?

W.S.: The rules haven't changed. Pick your patron and write for him what he wants to read.

A.L.R.: Patrons are out today.

W.S.: Nonsense. Patrons are the people who pay.

A.L.R.: But if he doesn't want to write for money?

W.S.: Get him a psychiatrist.

A.L.R.: You make it sound as if you are a prudent man of business who sat down and wrote for the market.

W.S.: Of course, I'm a prudent man of business. I'm like Shaw and Dickens, and Scott and Priestly and Trollope and Arthur Miller—we all drove hard bargains and we all made money. We weren't writing for our health. We met the market.

A.L.R.: What advice would you give to a young writer today?

Misery In Plenty

By MARQUIS CHILDS

IF President Johnson had done nothing else in his three months in office than to turn the light of publicity on poverty in America he would in that short time have made a place for himself in history.

"Thanks to the president's declaration of unconditional war, Americans are beginning to look at the invisible poor. What they are seeing is not flattering to America's ego. Indifference and apathy are beginning to give way to concern and a belief that something can be done to end the shame of misery in the midst of plenty."

Albeit gingerly one of the areas of poverty the country is asked to look at came up between President Johnson and President Lopez Mateos of Mexico in their talks in California. The braceros are the Mexican laborers—200,000 last year—brought into this country to do the stoop-lab, bending, picking of crops that cannot yet be harvested by machine.

Each year that the law permitting the braceros to enter and work under certain restrictions is up for renewal, spokesmen in Congress for America's own farm-laborers protest. This, they say, undercuts America's farm laborers who are at the bottom of the heap. It is a subsidy to the big factory farms in California and the Southwest.

According to department of labor figures put into the record when the bracero program was last debated, 2,500,000 farm laborers get an average yearly wage of $1.64.

That would seem to give them undisputed claim to the bottom position.

When the bracero question came up in the California talks President Lopez Mateos said that this was a question for the United States to determine. He had the impression that it benefited the American growers and it provided work for Mexicans who might otherwise be unemployed.

His restraint reflected Mexican pride. There is an understandable reluctance to admit that the bracero earnings sent back home are a factor in Mexico's balance of payments. The total may be as high as $75,000,000. The program is also a source of jobs for otherwise idle men who might swell the discontent that is a political reality seldom observed by the tourists who see Mexico's showy boom in the cities and resorts like Acapulco.

Despite increasing efforts to safeguard the braceros, incidents come to light showing the hardships and the misery they suffer while being transported from place to place with the shifting harvest season. Last September in a single trucking accident 32 of these imported farm workers were killed and the remainder of 56 in a makeshift bus were injured, some of them crippled for life. Only the driver escaped.

This caused an outcry over the apparent negligence and indifference contributing to what the National Safety Council said was the worst accident of its kind ever to occur in this country. Chairman Adam Clayton Powell of the House education and labor committee named Dr. Ernesto Galarza to investigate the tragedy. And that touched off another controversy.

Galarza, a Mexican-American who put himself through schools by his own efforts all the way to a Ph.D. at Columbia University, has long been a fighter for farm labor. His is the background which John Steinbeck made famous in some of his finest novels, "Cannery Row" and "Tortilla Flat." He gave up a comfortable job in Washington to try to organize farm workers in the now abandoned National Agricultural Workers Union of the AFL-CIO.

Consequently he was for 10 years in violent conflict with the big growers. When Powell named him to do the study he was attacked by one of California's right-wing congressmen who cited an alleged congressional report to link him with Communism. Rep. Don Edwards (D-Calif.) came to his defence and showed beyond any reasonable doubt that no such report existed. Galarza is currently suing one of the big growers for libel resulting from charges based on the same "report."

The bracero law expires at the end of this year. The California growers say they do not want it renewed. Automation is beginning to take over even for these crops where hand-cultivation and hand-picking has been essential.

But this is no answer either for the Mexican farm workers or for the 2,500,000 American farm laborers who together with their families earn a precarious existence in the factory fields of the West. His administration, as the president is so fond of saying, is a can-do administration and now with the light turned on is the time to act.

Students In House

Forty-five college students from the Spokane area visited the legislature at the start of Education Week yesterday to see the British parliamentary system in action.

In extending a "warm welcome to our American cousins and friends," Premier Bennett quipped from the floor of the House: "There is a representative government—ours is a responsible government."

Opposition leader Robert

Strachan, who endorsed Mr. Bennett's welcome, said jokingly he would leave until a later time the matter of "whether this is a responsible government."

B.C. Liberal leader Ray Perrault also welcomed the Americans. Premier Bennett told the legislature that of all the special weeks observed in B.C. and Canada, "none is more important than education in this province."

B.C. Fights Indian 'Jail Habit'

Albert NDP MLA John Squire wanted to know in the legislature yesterday what progress the government is making with the handling of Indians in B.C.'s jails.

Attorney-General Bonner replied that removal of the ban on sale of liquor to the Indians has contributed to "a tapering off" of the number of Indians in jail.

Those who are in jail usually find their way to forest camps where they seem to be best suited.

"Deliberate attention has to be given," he said, "to breaking down that acceptance of going away to jail." A number of Indians who used to get into trouble because of liquor laws got into the habit of going to jail.

Young Rescuer Vanishes

Drowning Boy Saved

An unknown youth plunged into the icy waters of Juan de Fuca Strait and saved a boy's life Sunday, then disappeared before anyone could thank him.

The youth plunged into the water and pulled out Stewart Rawlings, 4, of 344 Niagara, when he saw him trip on the B.C. Pilotage wharf and fall into the water.

Witnesses said the incident occurred at about 2 p.m., while many people were taking Sunday afternoon walks along the waterfront.

They said the youth, in his early teens, stripped off his shoes and some of his outer clothing before diving into the water.

He grabbed the unconscious boy and pulled him to shore, then went into a pilotage shed for dry off. He disappeared unnoticed a few minutes later.

MAN GIVES AID

Another man, also unknown, applied artificial respiration to the boy while his wife ran to the pilotage office to summon police.

Thomas Angus, who was on duty in the office, called the fire department, which responded within minutes with an inhalator crew.

Mr. Angus said there was so much excitement that no one thought about finding out who the rescuer was until after he had left.

BOY UNCONSCIOUS

Assistant Fire Chief William Wiggs, who was in charge of the inhalator crew, said Stewart was unconscious when they arrived, and they worked on him with an inhalator and using mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration for about 20 minutes before he recovered.

He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was reported in satisfactory condition yesterday.

Mrs. Henry Rawlings, mother of the boy, said she would like to find out the name of the youth who saved him so she can thank him personally.

"Stewart shouldn't have been down there on his own in the first place," said Mrs. Rawlings, "but the doctor says he's going to be all right now."

Kiernan Policy Opposed

National Parks Group Joins Resources Fight

The newly-formed National and Provincial Parks Association of Canada yesterday announced one of its first projects would be to hurt itself into the controversy over commercial exploitation of natural resources.

The association, in one of its early releases, notes conservationists both on the west—author Roderick Haig-Brown—and on the east coast—Jack Brantley of Halifax, who recently talked to the Nova Scotia Conference concerning Conservation and Leisure-Time Use of Natural Resources were against B.C. Mines and Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan's multiple resource use policy.

JOINS FIGHT

Meanwhile, the Metcosh Recreation Commission is the latest B.C. group to join in the save-the-parks battle. In a letter to Mr. Kiernan the commission asks him to take a second look at his recently announced policy for selective logging and controlled mining in provincial parks.

"It is understood that Strathcona Park contains the last extensive stand of Douglas fir on the whole Pacific Coast which has not yet been interfered with by man," said the letter.

"Until all the implications of plant and insect biology upon forest life are thoroughly understood, surely it would be unwise to upset the process of millions of years of evolution, let alone disturbing the aesthetic value." The letter warned Mr. Kiernan that in staying the axe he would be accused of over-caution by commercial interests, but said: "Surely this is a less grievous accusation than that of risking interference with the chain of life."

It concluded: "Previous generations of man have obliterated some species of life through ignorance—our generation cannot plead this excuse."

In Serious Offences

MLA Asks Curb On Magistrates

Magistrates should not have the power to preside over serious offences, says Yale MLA William Hartley.

More than 90 per cent of the criminal cases in Canada are disposed of by magistrates, who may or may not be legally trained, he said in the legislature yesterday.

He said there is "a strong feeling" among lawyers engaged in criminal work that the power of magistrates should be curtailed to deal only with minor matters.

The NDP MLA suggested that "serious offences ought to be dealt with by an independent and trained judge who is not spending most of his time dealing with drunks, vagrants, and petty offenders, and who is not in close and constant relationship with the police."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner replied that of 213 magistrates in the province, seven are district magistrates and 51 are trained in the legal profession. "The situation has considerably improved over what it was a few years ago," said Mr. Bonner.

Naval Men Aid Malaya Blood Bank

Personnel of Pacific Command destroyer-escorts, training in far eastern waters, collected the usual souvenirs on a side visit to Kuala Lumpur, Malaya, but they also left something behind—56 pints of blood.

The men and officers—aboard HMCS Fraser, Mackenzie and St. Laurent were docked at Port Swettenham on Malaya's west coast last month, and participated in several unofficial and official functions.

A large group of Canadian seamen toured a large rubber plantation and were later visited aboard ship by the Sultan of Selangor.

They donated the blood to the Malayan Red Cross during a side visit to the country.

Several "open houses" for visiting dignitaries have been staged by the squadron.

To contribute to the day-to-day scientific progress in the field of medicine, the Canadian Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service has undertaken a program of basic research in the general field of immunohaematology.

Gallery Asks Higher Grant

Victoria's art gallery is asking the city to boost its annual grant for 1964 from $3,500 to $3,800.

B. A. Tobin, gallery president, said in a letter to city council the past year has been one of "progress in many directions."

A new children's museum is nearing completion at the gallery, weekly attendance at the children's painting classes has risen from 120 to 150, and a record number of objects of art was added to the gallery's permanent collection.

He added the gallery has learned of the intended bequest of some important collections and that continually expanding services being offered is placing a severe strain on the small staff. "We are faced with the necessity of adding part-time help," he said.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator). Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

Indians May Help Pay for Centre

ALBERNI—West Coast Indian bands are considering giving financial as well as moral support to the proposed Friendship Centre in this area.

Visiting chiefs and band representatives from up and down the coast expressed their interest in the project at a Sornaa hall meeting of West Coast Allied Tribes, at which president Jack Peter was chairman and Sheshaht Chief Tom Gus, host.

INVITED GUESTS

Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni and Mayor Fred Bishop, Alberni, were among invited guests, outlining their hopes for the centre to provide a social gathering place and counselling service for Indians coming to the twin cities from isolated areas.

When Mayor Hammer, who originated the idea, proposed that city councils could give leadership but the Indians themselves must be willing to work for the centre, Colin S. Wilson, past president of the local NDP organization, declared the Indians should take the lead, showing they have the qualities to do so.

Chief Gus emphasized that the centre could be something more than a social gathering place.

"It could be a place where people coming from out-of-the-way communities could receive counselling. If they are to find jobs they must mingle with the people who are here and working," he said.

He questioned assistant agency superintendent Wally Easton on whether it would be in order to vote band funds for the project. He received an affirmative answer.

IN FAVOR

Among those who indicated they were in favor of the centre were Chief Sam Adams of the Ehatiseat Band, Esperanza; Pat Murphy, Nootka; Ambrose Maquinn, Nootka's hereditary chief; William Dennis, Ojish Chief; Webster Thompson, Nootka councillor; Kelly Coates, Kildonan; Chief Sam Touchie, Ucluelet; Bennett Andrews, Hesquiat; Mark Atleo, Ahousat.

On motion of Alex McCarthy, Ucluelet council member and director of the West Coast Allied Tribes, it was agreed that chiefs and councillors should meet in the near future to discuss plans for participation in the project.

RECENT VISIT

Mrs. Keitha Adams told of a recent visit to Vancouver's Friendship Centre.

"The more I consider the local plan, the more advantages I can see in it," she said. Chief Gus and Peter both indicated that they are in favor of Bill C130, which, if passed by Parliament, would set up an Indians' Land Claims Commission.

While Mr. Peters suggested that a lawyer's advice should be sought to help clarify the bill, Chief Gus was unequivocal in his support.

"It's for your good," he told the delegates. "There is a land claim commission in the United States and the Indian people there have collected millions of dollars. A lot of you people have had your lands cut off. You lost your land years ago. You can put in your claims when a commission has been formed, not before."

Ross Modeste, same representative on the B.C. Special Advisory Council, was a guest speaker.

MISSED OUT

He told the meeting that in the past Indian tribes may have missed out on their fair share of the B.C. Special, the $100,000 annual grant to B.C. Indians in lieu of treaty money. At a recent meeting of the advisory board it was unanimously agreed that the money should be divided on a per capita basis, to be administered at the agency level.

Attending the meeting with Mr. Modeste were Chief Mike Underwood, Duncan; Chief Douglas Skilling, a nephew of Wilson Bob, Cowichan, and Victoria Soerred Waldo Skillings, Chief Ed Underwood, Saanich.

B.C. Budget Still Tops

Premier Bennett isn't going to be taken in by any fiscal jiggery-pokery from Social Credit Alberta.

Yesterday he repudiated Alberta's claim to having the third highest provincial budget in Canada.

The Alberta budget came down Friday and totalled $414,500,000—a cool $18,500,000 more than Mr. Bennett's—or so it seemed.

Alberta, he said, had lumped in federal-provincial and municipal-provincial cost-sharing items to produce a gross figure. B.C.'s $396,000,000 budget was net provincial expenditure.

After Premier Bennett adjusted Alberta's budget it was $41,000,000 smaller than his.

"The Alberta budget is a good budget," he allowed, "it is just not as big as British Columbia's."

The legislature observed one minute of silence last night, in tribute to the memory of Angus Macinnis, a founder of the CCF party, who died in Vancouver yesterday.

Premier Bennett told reporters, "while we know he was not feeling well for some time, his passing was a shock."

"I am sure I express the feelings of all the people of B.C., regardless of party, that Angus Macinnis was an outstanding citizen for B.C. and Canada."

Last night the legislature approved the $14,738,558 estimates of the attorney-general's department after a debate lasting about seven hours.

At today's sitting, the House will be asked to consider estimates of the department of industrial development, trade and commerce, the department of education and possibly the department of labor.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner announced the government plans a pay boost for jury duty.

Later in the session, the government plans to bring in an amendment to the Jury Act "involving a variation in remuneration," Mr. Bonner said.

The attorney-general told reporters his department was considering "a modest increase," including a $1-a-day pay boost along with the possibility that jury fees might be considered as a tax-free expense.

Liberal leader Ray Perrault said the time is ripe for creation

Nanaimo Race Plans Falter in Stretch

Nanaimo horse racing plans faltered in the stretch in the legislature yesterday.

The select standing committee on private bills announced it has turned down a bid to incorporate Vancouver Island Turf Association, a Nanaimo promotion.

Committee chairman Alex Matthew (SC-Vancouver Centre) said the bill was improperly drawn up—it gave too much authority to too few people.

Nine shareholders were provided for, but only three of them were named: F. W. "Bus" Matthew, a former Tory MP; Douglas Skillings, a nephew of Wilson Bob, Cowichan, and businessman John Knight.

IF JOHN JACOB PEABODY HAD LIVED TO BE 123

March 18th, 1864, was the 23rd Birthday of John Jacob Peabody, who looked a bit like Abe Lincoln. It also was the day The Huron & Erie Savings and Loan Society (now Canada Trust-Huron & Erie) began accepting savings and lending money on mortgages.

It was a big day for John Jacob, as it was for us. He inherited what was then considered a fortune—$48,265.00, to be exact. It made him the most sought-after matrimonial prize in Canada West.

Some fair maid must have caught him. No one seems to know what became of him or his money.

But it is fun to speculate that had John Jacob deposited his $48,265.00 with our infant Company and left it to pile up interest... today he would be by far the richest 123-year-old man in the country, with $2,533,183.00 to his credit. Poor John Jacob... The Millionaire That Never Was.

Money still grows. YOU do not have to start with a fortune and live to be 123 in order to build a very tidy sum.

Regular weekly deposits of only $10 in a Canada Trust-Huron & Erie Deposit Account at 4% Interest will add up to $2,900 in five years, $6,400 in ten years. It is a wonderful way to make fond dreams come true... a trip around the world... a big payment on a new home... a shiny sports car... an assured university education for a son or daughter.

Even if you can spare only $1 a week, drop into any one of our offices across Canada and start an account to make your special dream come true.

And if by the sheerest chance your christened name happens to be either John Jacob Peabody or Sarah Matilda Peabody, Canada Trust-Huron & Erie will start you off with a Gift of $500 in memory of The Millionaire That Never Was. The offer expires April 30, 1964.

Richard and Woman Scrap Over Cowbell

MONTREAL (CP) — Controversy continues to dog the footsteps of Maurice (Rocket) Richard, the fiery former scoring ace of Montreal's National Hockey League Canadiens.

The Rocket was at the Forum Sunday afternoon watching son Normand perform for Ahutic in a bantam hockey game against Rosemont, when he got involved in an incident with a Rosemont partisan, a young woman ringing a cowbell in a seat behind him.

The woman, Mrs. Georges Cloutier, 22, claims that the Rocket pushed her and hit her when she refused. She showed a red blotch on her cheek and torn ski-pants.

The Rocket said he tried to take the bell from her and, in the course of events, she fell, but he didn't hit her. The blotch on her face "must have happened when she fell. I didn't hit her."

He said Mrs. Cloutier and another woman insisted on ringing the bell and shouting abuse at the Ahutic players. He decided to take the bell away after his wife had asked them several times in vain to stop.

He said that whenever he goes to the Forum, no matter how many empty seats there are, some people insist on sitting near him and needing him.

It was an unhappy day for the Richards on the ice, too. Ahutic lost the game 2-1 and son Normand got a misconduct penalty.

Let Congolese Police Cyprus?

LONDON (UPI) — An Englishman with an ironic sense of humor made a novel suggestion yesterday for settling the Cyprus crisis in a letter to the Daily Telegraph.

Mr. P. Leon of Leicester suggested it would be an appropriate gesture for United Nations Secretary General U Thant to send Congolese troops to the troubled island to keep the peace.

Greek Girl Foster Child Of Lansdowne Students

A 14-year-old Greek girl student is the latest foster child of Lansdowne school students.

The student, Theoni Matsa, is just finishing elementary school and is ready for high school.

FAMILY OF NINE

But for one of a family of nine, supported by a mother who does farm work for less than $29 a month, getting an education isn't easy.

Adoption by Lansdowne pupils means an increase in income of $16 a month for the Greek farm family and will help to pay for food, clothing, medical care and school fees.

The students at Lansdowne collect $200 a year for their foster child and the money is administered by the Foster Parents Plan.

The money is collected from students once a year.

When Theoni is able to work, the school will be invited to take care of another needy person.

Theoni and the Lansdowne students keep in touch with each other by letter through the Foster Parents Plan.

Newspaper Advertising Stimulates Buying

This we change.

This we don't.

Now you can see for yourself where we make most of our changes. Way down deep. Every part you can see and every part you can't see has been changed again and again and again. As a matter of fact, there are only six parts left from the original VW.

But we never change the VW without a reason. And the only reason is to make it even better. When we do make a change, we try to make the new part fit older models, too.

So you'll find that many VW parts are interchangeable from one year to the next.

Which is why it's actually easier to get parts for a VW than for many domestic cars. And why VW service is as good as it is. The same principle holds good for the beetle shape.

We made the rear window bigger one year so you could see other people better.

And made the tail lights bigger so other people could see you better.

But nothing drastic. Any Volkswagen hood still fits any VW ever made. So does any fender.

And, in case you hadn't noticed, every VW still looks like every other VW.

Which may turn out to be the nicest thing of all about the car. It doesn't go in, one year and out the other.

An impaired driver was sentenced in city magistrate's court yesterday to three weeks imprisonment, and three others were fined after pleading guilty to the same offence.

Gordon McLaughlin, 627 Toronto, pleaded guilty to the charge and admitted being previously convicted on a similar charge.

Court was told McLaughlin was seen weaving over the centre line at 1:50 a.m. Feb. 23, while driving east on Fort Street.

He told police he had had only three or four glasses of beer. James W. Dickie, 1621 Ruby, was fined $350 after court was told he admitted having "10 or 12" glasses of beer.

He was stopped while driving on Hillside at 12:10 a.m. Sunday. A man who said he had drunk only one glass of beer was fined $300 after court was told he had collided with a car while driving east on Humboldt and attempting to turn left on Douglas Street at 9:10 p.m. Saturday.

Joginder Singh Atwal, 562 Sumas, was found by police to be unsteady on his feet, and his breath smelled strongly of alcohol.

Edwin Martinson, 340 Island Highway, was fined $300 in Esquimalt court when he pleaded guilty to the charge.

Court was told he was driving north on Admirals Road when he struck a parked car, causing $350 damage.

All four drivers had their licences suspended.

A man charged with driving while intoxicated was remanded without plea for one week when he faced the charge in city court. Court was told Adam Grant Cunningham, 450 Burnside West, was involved in a minor accident in a parking lot at 2350 Douglas.

Three youths charged with stealing a camera from a car

Feb. 25 pleaded guilty in city court to theft under $50.

Eugene Lupinski, Princess Avenue; Donald Rolph, 816 Linden, and George F. Lewis, 1163 Wychbury, were checked at 3 a.m. Feb. 25, and found to have a stolen camera under the driver's seat of the car they were in. Driver of the car was Lewis.

Court was told the camera, along with other goods, was stolen from a car parked in the 1700 block, Gonzales, early Feb. 25.

The three were remanded to March 3 for probation report and sentence.

Thief Gets Cigarettes

A thief escaped with a few cartons of cigarettes and two wrist watches when he broke into a room occupied by Jack Walton, 576 Johnson, overnight Sunday, city police said yesterday.

Fire Quelled

Fire which started in an oil heater and spread through three rooms in a house at 2870 Albina, home of J. T. Glenon, was quelled quickly Sunday night.

Saanich fire department said walls and ceiling in the kitchen and bathroom were scorched, and flames spread to the attic, causing about $600 damage.

Odd Place To Park A Car

Poor parking place was found by Peter Lopatecki of Vancouver after he collided with car driven by John Hamilton, 408 Rimco, Sunday morning. Here Victoria police Const. David Glancy takes particulars from Lopatecki and passenger Lynn Newman, also of Vancouver. Lopatecki went out of control after collision, hit a sign post and travelled through fence and hedge on property of Tom Matheson, 1802 Oak Bay. There were no serious injuries.

Overpass Crash

Car Wrecked Woman Cut

A woman wrecked her car, but escaped with a cut lip and a bruised knee when she lost control of the vehicle at the Thetis Lake Overpass on the Trans-Canada Highway yesterday morning.

Colwood RCMP said Mrs. Gertrude Schroter, 662 Niagara, had just turned off the highway on the way toward Colwood when she lost control on a curve under the overpass.

She went through a guard rail, over a ditch, and came to rest with her car partially on the CNR tracks.

She was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and released.

Thug Loses Tug of War

A purse snatcher lost a tug-of-war with a woman on Rockland Avenue Sunday night.

The unidentified youth knocked Dorothy Crighton, 1057 Moss, to the ground in the 1100-block Rockland at about 7:45 p.m., and tried to grab her purse.

She held on tightly, and the youth gave up and ran away in the darkness.

He was described as about 15, well built, and wearing a light jacket and dark pants.

Ex-Airmen, Wives Get Invitation

Sewer Tenders Due March 13

Tenders for purchase and installation of sewer pipe at Sidney are returnable March 13.

Bids were originally called for Feb. 26 but council decided to add another 1,000 feet to the system, and added time to have the extra footage included in the specifications.

Motorist's Condition 'Only Fair'

A man who suffered chest injuries in a two-car, head-on collision in the 1000-block Holland Sunday is in only fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Norman J. Shepherd, 1280 Glyn, was injured when he was in collision with a car driven by Volney Irving, 14 Stillwater, who is in good condition with a head laceration.

Saanich police said the cars collided on the brow of a hill. There were no passengers in either vehicle.

This we change.

This we don't.

In spite of its short life (2 years and 1 month) we've already found 141 ways to improve the VW 1500.

Not that you'd notice it. On the surface, you'd have to look carefully to spot the improvements.

This year we made the parking lights bigger to make the lighting brighter. And we put a handle on the front trunk to make the lifting lighter.

But apart from considerable little changes like these you can hardly tell a '62 from a '64.

Underneath it's a different story. A lot has happened. Since our debut. For 1964 we developed an optional engine. It has much extra power for a few extra dollars. Yet you can still get around 35 miles to a gallon of gas (which everybody likes).

Before the VW 1500 made its appearance, spare parts for it were already in dealer's hands, and since most of these parts fit any 1500 (regardless of its year), servicing is simple and economical.

True, the 1500 is less than 3 years old. But our Volkswagen mechanics have already had 10 years' experience. The important mechanical principles of the 1500 TS are the same as the beetle (right down to the air cooled rear engine and independent torsion bar suspension).

So you see, while there are now two Volkswagens, underneath it all, things haven't really changed, except for the better.

A. W. E. PITKETHLY
... regional concept

Regional Basis

Hospitals Forecast Proposed

Greater Victoria municipalities should request from local hospital authorities "a reasonable forecast of the need for new facilities or planned expansion of existing ones."

This advice was contained in a letter received at city hall from A. W. E. Pitkethly, manager of hospital construction and planning division of B.C.H.S.

PLANNING NEEDED

The letter said there is no intention of disturbing current building programs for local hospitals.

Mr. Pitkethly added: "It is my feeling, however, that no future expansion of hospital facilities or new construction should take place without evidence of planning on the basis of a regional concept."

"This concept is only practical if it is supported financially by the areas served by the hospitals in question."

Once an estimate of future expansion costs is arrived at, municipalities could then agree on the basis of sharing.

CARRY BURDEN

Mr. Pitkethly also supplied figures which showed Royal Jubilee Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital together cared for 89 per cent of general hospital needs for the entire area.

The letter added this and other related information suggests that the time may be approaching when unorganized territories should be organized into a hospital improvement district and thus share in capital costs.

The figures supplied to the council exclude rehabilitation cases at Veterans' Hospital and Gorge Road Hospital.

OTHER AREAS

The listing for "other areas"—defined as largely North Saanich unorganized areas—accounted for 15.6 per cent of all cases treated and 17.3 per cent of days spent in hospital.

Comparative figures for Victoria city, largest single user, were 33.4 per cent of the cases and 38.3 per cent of hospital days.

Castro's Jail His Topic

Victoria scientist, Dr. Harvey Richardson, Canadian who was imprisoned in Cuba, will give first-hand account of his experiences at meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Victoria in the Empress Hotel at 12:15 p.m. today. He has recently made two visits to Cuba and during the last one he spent four days in Castro's jail charged as a spy and enemy of the revolution.

Kiernan Promises:

Axe Won't Touch Trees
On Shores Of ButtleBy ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoors Editor

Strathcona Park timber along the shores of Buttle Lake won't be logged.

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan gave this assurance in an interview yesterday.

"Nobody is going to log that area," he said.

"What on earth would be the sense of spending $3,000,000 to preserve the area (by clear-cutting and grubbing trees before flooding for hydro purposes) and then negate it all by logging?" he said.

Mr. Kiernan observed that timber along Buttle Lake "is not that mature . . . It would stand for another 100 to 150 years yet."

"They can go and whistle Dixie, but they aren't going to log the shores of Buttle Lake," he said in answer to published warnings that timber companies claim Buttle Lake timber is over-mature and should be cut.

Mr. Kiernan said he would like to bring the major portion of Forbidden Plateau into Strathcona Park, but added it is a difficult deal to accomplish.

He also said he would like to see all of Buttle Lake come within Strathcona Park boundaries.

Seeks Timber Trade

He said his department would step up its park reservation program, but explained that placing a reserve on property doesn't mean it will be immediately developed as a park.

Mr. Kiernan explained his policy with regard to realignment of park boundaries to make wilderness parks more accessible and of more recreation value.

He said he would be prepared to trade timber in non-accessible park areas of little recreation value for other areas of high recreation value.

He indicated he would try to make such a trade to bring Forbidden Plateau area into Strathcona Park.

He didn't say so in as many words, but he indicated that because of its inaccessibility the southwest corner of Strathcona Park where it touches saltwater at Herbert Inlet would make a good area of the park to trade off for more desirable areas.

"It takes a pretty seaworthy boat to get to that area. I wouldn't like to see anybody try it in a 15-foot runabout. That would be inviting trouble," he said.

Deal Already Made

Already part of the park in that area—at adjacent Bedwell River—has been traded off to timber and mining interests for parklands along the beach at Schooner Cove, adjacent to Long Beach.

He explained that Rathrevor Beach near Parksville and Rebecca Spit on Quadra Island were obtained as parks through trades for timber in Wells Gray Park.

He said his department is trying to get some timber stands along the road to Bella Coola where an access could be provided to Tweedsmuir Park. He hoped to get them by effecting a trade for timber in some remote area of the huge park.

Mr. Kiernan's first speech to the legislature as recreation minister touched off a furor when he favored some mining and logging in wilderness parks, but since then he has said conservationists have no need for such alarm.

On the question of multiple use in the large parks he said in the legislature "there tends to be some rather emotional thinking and while it is essential we have a heart, this does not excuse us from the necessity of using our head."

It's Not Conservation

"If there is some particular merit in allowing over-mature trees to fall down and rot, simply because they are in a park area, I fall to comprehend it. Certainly it is not properly described as conservation."

"Where the bulk of the timber in a region has reached senility, it should be harvested, the area cleaned up and reforested and, in the harvesting process, provide the access facilities so that as the population grows, we have those healthy, young forested areas for public enjoyment, not decadent fire traps. Under strict control, this can be done to general public benefit."

Yesterday he explained there had been no intention to log Strathcona or Garibaldi parks.

First Donation

Students Pledge
$2,000 to Varsity

By JUDITH BAINES

A $2,000 donation, the first to be pledged to the 1964 University of Victoria development fund drive, will come from the students themselves.

The donation, which was approved by the students' council Sunday night, will be spread over four years and will come out of Alma Mater Society funds. Students' council president Larry Devlin said: "This money is not a surplus and will represent a sacrifice to the students."

Each student pays a $30 AMS fee, which goes towards sports, club activities, campus publications and payment of the student union building.

"We hope that the donation will indicate the concern of the students for the development of this university and their willingness to join with the citizens of Victoria in ensuring its growth," Mr. Devlin said.

WONDERFUL GESTURE

University development board chairman H. B. Elworthy said: "It's a wonderful gesture."

"The students are setting the pace before we've approached the general public. I'm glad they were first to make a pledge. It gives the campaign a shot in the arm."

Saanich

Gaglardi Hints Aid Possible
For McKenzie Avenue Project

Highways Minister Gaglardi has responded sympathetically to proposals that the provincial government help develop McKenzie Avenue as a link between Douglas Street and the Trans-Canada Highway.

In a letter read at a Saanich council meeting last night, the highways minister said the avenue "may warrant some classification" to make it eligible for provincial help as a link between Highways 1 (the Trans-Canada Highway) and 17 (the Patricia Bay Highway).

FURTHER REPRESENTATIONS

He suggested that council make further representations following completion of a current traffic survey currently under way in Greater Victoria.

He suggested that, if it is to be a link between the two highways, Saanich should acquire a road allowance of sufficient width to accommodate a four-lane highway.

Saanich council also:

● Heard Coun. Hugh Curtis recommend that Saanich councilors go and see for themselves the "disgusting" conditions at the Hartland Road dump, outside municipal boundaries, where much Saanich garbage, along with that of the city of Victoria, is dumped;

● Learned that Saanich Reeve Stanley Murphy has appointed Kenneth Genn, head of council's advisory planning committee and a former council member, to represent Saanich along with Coun. Curtis on a special inter-municipal committee to discuss a Greater Victoria project for Canada's 1967 centenary;

● Discussed municipal plans to have a sewage outfall into Cordova Bay, included in the plans of a company planning a residential development, also handle sewage from some areas beside the planned development — if the controversial outfall is permitted by the B.C. government pollution control board;

● Approved further investigation into buying additional parkland in the Gordon Head area, and agreed to spend $7,300 to buy a plot at the south end of Prospect Lake as a park.

The base of the trees. But passers-by, chiefly those wearing high heels, compacted the covering so that moisture and air couldn't pass through it to the tree roots.

City works crews in the past few days have been removing the old covering and replacing it with bricks laid without mortar to allow free passage of air and moisture.

"We think this is the final solution," city parks administrator W. H. Warren said yesterday.

The sidewalk trees—about 40 of them were planted on both sides of Douglas in the heart of the downtown area early last year—are flourishing.

The program is likely to be extended this year to fill in gaps in the present tree system on Douglas between the Hudson's Bay Co. and Humbert Green.

Tree raising under these conditions can sometimes be a matter of trial-and-error.

Clues Sifted
For Fugitive

Statements by two newsmen who were with Colquitz fugitive Frank Carlow for about five hours before he turned himself in are being carefully scrutinized by police in the hope that they might provide a lead to the whereabouts of a second fugitive, Richard Rodrigues.

Meanwhile, in the legislature yesterday, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said the manner in which Carlow was returned to custody Saturday night was still under study.

No Progress

Shipyard Talks
Adjourn

No prospects for an early end to the B.C. shipyard strike emerged from union-management talks in Vancouver yesterday.

The talks adjourned yesterday with no date set for resumption, but they are expected to begin again after the 23 unions involved confer among themselves.

William Stewart of the Marine Workers and Boilermakers Union, Vancouver, said Victoria unions involved in the strike are expected to meet Wednesday or Thursday and Vancouver unions are to meet Wednesday.

It was understood the unions requested yesterday's adjournment of the talks.

CLUE CONTAINED

Saanich Det.-Sgt. Joseph Armstrong said last night he felt a clue to Rodrigues' whereabouts was probably contained in Carlow's statements.

He asked the two newsmen for a detailed account of their conversations with Carlow.

"We plan to study the statements and see if we can track down Rodrigues before he gets into more trouble," said Sgt. Armstrong.

IN TOUCH

In the House, Mr. Bonner said: "Certain members of the public were in touch with the prisoner (Carlow) 12 hours prior to his being turned over to the police—that matter is subject to further inquiry."

He also told the House, in reply to a request from NDP MLA David Barrett, that he saw no reason to issue any statement different from the one made by B.C. prisons superintendent Rockborough Smith.

UTTER NONSENSE

Mr. Smith said in Sunday's Colonist that the charges of improper treatment at Colquitz made by Carlow after his surrender to the press early Saturday morning were "utter nonsense."

Most of the Colquitz staff had prison service ranging from seven to 19 years, and new staff members "were very carefully selected from institutions on the mainland," Mr. Bonner told the House.

ANY ONE OF THEM

"It is improbable that any one of them is given to an improper attitude toward the inmates," he said.

The 12-hour delay in turning Carlow over to the authorities

"is a practice not to be commended to any member of the public," said the attorney-general.

RESUMED DEBATE

The question about Colquitz and B.C.'s penal system came when the legislature resumed its debate yesterday on the $30,628 estimates for salaries and expenses in the attorney-general's office.

The estimate itself, including a $15,000 salary for Mr. Bonner, was finally approved after 5½ hours of debate which started Thursday night.

Mr. Bonner reiterated that his department is looking for suitable Crown land on Vancouver Island where a new medium security prison could be constructed for prisoners from the Island.

Last week Oak Bay council sent a telegram to Lands and Forests Minister William, asking a compromise settlement between residents and the station concerned. There has been no reply as yet.

In other business, council moved to delete the milk-vending sections from its licensing bylaw and will return a $2 licensing fee to Island Farm Dairies Co-operative Association.

Council took the action after the dairy firm, applying for its vendor's licence to operate in Oak Bay objected to the municipal "milk regulation bylaw" on the grounds the section of the licensing bylaw had been superseded by provincial regulations.

Council gave unanimous approval of the proposed City of Victoria centennial fountain.

An Oak Bay resident last night appeared before Oak Bay council to thank members for their interest in the Trial Island radio towers controversy, and voiced protest over the "arbitrary manner" of the provincial government in leasing the island.

J. A. Dunn, 645 Radcliffe Lane, was one of several waterfront residents opposing the application by CFAX to erect the 150-foot transmitter on the offshore island.

New Position

Separate Fire Chief
Urged for Esquimalt

A proposal to establish the position of fire chief in Esquimalt has been made by the fire and light committee to the police commission.

Object of creating the new position is to reduce the work load on Police Chief James Smart who also doubles in brass as fire chief and is called on to do fire inspections and other chores in addition to police duties. The proposal has not yet been put to council.

In negotiations between police union and the commission, police have asked to become a separate department calling for the hiring of a fire department and for a time and a half overtime clause.

FEDERAL WORKS

An increase of between $4,000 and $5,000 to meet the cost of public works maintenance was called for by public works committee chairman E. L. De Costa at Esquimalt council last night.

Council approval was given to start development of another area of the Rockheights subdivision.

Council was told the development of the subdivision would cost about $35,000, but that this and more would be recovered by the sale of lots.

The riddle of what was the front of a piece of property brought about the tabling of an application to build a $140,000, 21-suite apartment block at the foot of Dingley Dell Street in Esquimalt.

PROBLEM AROSE

The problem arose when Ronald Wood, 2904 Murray Drive, maintained the front of the site was the area facing the water and not, as interpreted by municipal officials, that part which faces the street.

Under the bylaw, cars are not permitted to be parked in front of apartments. Council contended cars parked by apartment residents would create an eyesore and were wary of setting a precedent in allowing the parking.

Women's high heels have been playing havoc with the prepared area around sidewalk trees on downtown Douglas Street, but city parks officials feel they have the problem licked.

Daffs Point to Fair

Chances on a trip for two to the New York World's Fair will be sold with plastic daffodil bouquets during the Victoria Spring Flower Festival, it was decided yesterday.

Festival committee of Victoria Chamber of Commerce decided the draw for the trip will be in late May.

One of the festival events is to be a hot-rod road-race, organized jointly by Victoria hot-rod clubs and the Jaycees, March 23.

The committee was told yesterday that men's as well as women's fashions are to be on view at a festival fashion show at the Empress Hotel March 21.

Oak Bay municipal council last night agreed to pay its share of any losses incurred by sponsors of the Daffodil Festival, providing Esquimalt and Saanich would do the same.

Which means Oak Bay will not pay its share of any losses, as Esquimalt council has already indicated it will not underwrite any loss up to $5,000.

from collectors, we can requisition more."

Collectors who want first-day-of-issue covers should send self-addressed covers to the Postmaster, Ottawa 2, Ont., including sufficient remittance to cover the five-cent service fee plus cost of postage.

European Trip For Newlyweds

Following a two-month honeymoon trip to Europe, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Daniel Wallingford Ney will make their home in Montreal, P.Q.

Dr. Harry K. Johnston officiated at the ceremony, held in Fairfield United Church Saturday afternoon, which united Florence Elaine, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Elliott Seythes, 1325 Rockland Avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Ney, 3074 Oakdown Avenue.

Arrangements of white and yellow gladioli, and stocks and candelabra decorated the church for the candlelight ceremony.

As the dark-haired bride entered the church on the arm of her father, the congregation sang "O Perfect Love," accompanied by organist, Mrs. R. Webster. Solist, Mrs. H. Youson, sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie styled on classic lines. The slightly scooped neckline was enhanced with self-embroidery

In Business

Wouldn't Overlook Women

TORONTO (CP)—Women can make a significant contribution to business and those who "automatically and unthinkingly" discriminate against women in promotions are "perhaps missing some excellent opportunities," says J. C. McCarthy of Toronto, vice-president and general sales manager of Consumers' Gas Company.

Mr. McCarthy gave the keynote address at the eighth annual seminar of the Toronto branch of the Association of Administrative Assistants. Some 250 private secretaries attended.

He listed some general qualities he said would be overlooked in the business world if men wrote off all chances of using womanly talents. Among them were:

Women are better housekeepers "and business today is getting to be more and more a matter of good housekeeping"; women are less given to panic than men; women have a higher pain threshold and more physical stamina than men.

While men stumble around with his facts and statistics, he continued, the irritating female will often simply point a pretty finger and disarmingly uncover the solution to a problem.

Mexican Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Eveleigh, 3755 Seaton Street, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Irene Jean, to Mr. Kenneth Alfred Cawdell, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cawdell of Mission City. The wedding will take place Saturday, March 14, at 8 p.m. in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, with Rev. Charles Scott officiating.—(Jus-Rite)

Central Baptist Church was decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums recently when Carol Louise Ansdell exchanged marriage vows with John Robertson Parton.

Rev. Robert Holmes officiated at the double-ring ceremony which united the daughter of Mrs. Thomas Ansdell of South Burnaby and the son of Mrs. Albert Parton, 2028 Kings Road, Victoria.

The bride, given in marriage by James F. Wilson, friend of the family, wore a floor-length gown of white satin styled with beaded skirt which swept back into a train. The bodice and train were enhanced with lace applique and back interst was created with two self-fabric roses at waistline. Her veil misted to shoulder-length from a headpiece of satin roses and only jewelry was a single strand of pearls. Pink roses and white freesia were in her bouquet.

Matron of honor, Mrs. L. Sandor, and bridesmaid, Miss Ann Rolph, wore identical gowns of pink organza over taffeta accented with embroidery on bodice and skirt. Headpieces, shoes and gloves en tons completed their outfits. All wore single strands of pearls and carried bouquets of white and pink carnations.

Richard Newell was best man and guests were ushered to their pews by Les Sandor.

At a reception which followed in Holyrood House, the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake surrounded by pink roses. Chrysanthemums and vases of pink roses completed the decor.

Toast was proposed by John Currier.

For travelling on a honeymoon trip to California and Mexico the bride wore a winter white double two-piece suit with pink lace blouse and tanning accessories. Pink roses and white freesia were in her corsage.

The couple is now making their home at 340 Linden Avenue.

Hospital Film Cure for Fright

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg Children's Hospital is planning to make a film to help young patients overcome fear of hospitals and ease the nervousness of their parents.

"We find parents don't tell their children they are going to have an operation, then bolt them into the hospital situation and are surprised if the child is disturbed by the experience," a hospital spokesman says.

"Sometimes the youngsters are told they are going to the circus to see some pleasurable event. Then they are taken to the hospital and abandoned."

"We've had cases where patients reverted to a more infantile stage of development after coming home from the hospital, bed-wetting or showing other signs of disturbance. In one other case a child had nightmares two months after coming home."

To reduce such side effects, patients and their parents in recent years have been shown a 15-minute educational film from a Los Angeles children's hospital. There have also been weekly tours of the hospital for patients-to-be.

Now the hospital here is to have its clinical photography department make its own film, dealing with the experience of one or two young patients. The idea is to show that there is nothing frightening about doctors, nurses or such equipment as oxygen tents.

Children respond much better to efforts to help them if they aren't afraid and understand what hospitals are trying to do, a doctor said.

Will Daughter Follow In Mother's Footsteps?

By ELIZABETH BINKS

LONDON (TNS) — The voters in Halifax riding in Yorkshire have been endorsing the adage "like father, like son" ever since 1953 when they first elected Maurice Macmillan, son of Britain's former Prime Minister, as their member of parliament.

Now, when they go to the polls this year to vote in the general election, they will have the chance, if they wish to take it, of giving a daughter her turn.

For opposing Macmillan as Labor candidate will be vivacious, red-haired Dr. Shirley Summerskill, 32-year-old daughter of one of Britain's most remarkable woman politicians, the Rt. Hon. Baroness Summerskill of Kenwood.

Lady Summerskill had two young children when she first entered the House, yet she entered the political fray with as much vigor as a single man with no responsibilities. And she's still fighting.

While she attended to the local needs of her riding and to the demands of a full-time medical practice, she began her campaign for women's rights, the abolition of professional boxing, higher salaries for nurses.

Pasteurized milk—and an almost instantaneous decline in bone tuberculosis—came about in the thirties as a result of her efforts. The list goes on and on. Today, she denounces television for showing violence and attributes the rising juvenile crime rate in Britain largely on its influence.

Lady Summerskill is by no means ready to retire from the political limelight just because her daughter shows every sign of following her into it. But for the next few months she will be absent more than usual from her front bench seat in the Lords to handle some of Shirley's medical duties while she is campaigning.

Not only has Shirley followed her mother professionally and politically, she has also taken her name.

Both claim they seldom disagree about anything and, for her part, Shirley says she has never felt pushed or dominated by her mother's example.

Dr. Shirley Summerskill gets some assistance from her mother, Rt. Hon. Baroness Summerskill, as she plans her political campaign.

"It was the most natural thing in the world for me to follow in my mother's footsteps," she says.

And what is she like, this severe, frighteningly single-minded and often authoritarian woman who sees in her daughter an almost perfect mirror of everything she has worked for.

Despite the square, mannish hats, the sensible shoes, the tweedy suits which have delighted political cartoonists for years, she has very soft blue eyes and a warm smile.

Far from having sacrificed her family for her career, her greatest pride is, as a mother, that her family life has always been so happy.

And Shirley? As like her mother in appearance as everything else, her sparkle earned her the title "pin-up of the North" when she campaigned unsuccessfully for a seat at Blackpool two years ago.

She has written one book which puts the lie to those who call her unfeminine and lacking warmth. The book is a novel, A Surgical Affair, and it's a love story with a hospital background.

Outspoken, determined and very well-informed, she has yet to face her baptism of fire in the House of Commons. But already she is known in political circles as a young lady who will make her mark—and make it on her own.

The election battle is on in Britain now and the outcome of the Macmillan-Summerskill clash is anyone's guess. But one thing is certain. Whatever the result, Britain will be hearing lots more from both the Summerskills.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is 36 years old and 35 pounds overweight. When I married Gordon 11 years ago he was actually skinny. In fact his nickname was "Slim."

New Year's Eve Gordon put on his tuxedo for the first time in four years and he looked like a stuffed sausage. He was unable to button the trousers and had to use a large safety pin. If the cummerbund had not been adjustable he could not have worn the tux at all.

When I mentioned exercise to Gordon he triumphantly pointed out that in the past five years three of his close friends who were athletes in college had died of heart attacks. He also gave me chapter and verse on nationally famous sports figures who suffered heart attacks at an early age.

If exercise is so good for people (as I know it must be) why do so many athletes die young? — NAGGING NELLIE.

Dear Nell: The athletes who drop dead are usually the ones who trained vigorously during their adolescent and post-adolescent years and then quit.

Any physician will tell you that moderate, regular, and frequent exercise is very good for middle-aged people. This does not mean an hour of handball or three sets of tennis under a blazing sun—particularly for the man who has sat in the spectator stands during his younger years.

You can tell Gordon for me that more people die from over-eating than from over-exercise. And the best exercise of all is pushing one's self away from the table.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a middle-aged career woman, not a giddy teen-ager, so please bear this in mind when you respond to my inquiry.

The man I am dating asked me what I would like for Valentine's Day. He then quoted a maximum figure of how much he would spend.

Assembly No. 5

Celebrates 40th Year

The Canadian Daughters' League, Assembly No. 5 met recently at 722 Cormorant Street to celebrate its 40th anniversary.

The charter which was presented in 1924 was signed by Ethel Woodman who has been national president and only recently retired, from office.

The surviving charter member of Assembly No. 5, Mrs. R. H. McInnes lives in West Vancouver. She was in Victoria for the event and to attend the 50th anniversary of Oaklands School.

A corsage of red roses was given to Mrs. Marcella Hemon, one of the oldest members present.

A birthday with 40 lighted candles centred the refreshment table. Mrs. Marjorie Whitwell, convener, poured tea and was assisted by Mrs. Muriel Taylor, Mrs. L. Kinsey, Mrs. Hilda Summers, Miss Eleanor Oancia and Mrs. Marjorie Pollard.

Guest speaker was Mrs. P. R. Combs who chose as her subject "Achievements of the Canadian Association of Consumers."

In all my life I was never so astonished. Since he has put the gift on such a crass basis I am not at all sure I want ANYTHING from him for Valentine's Day—or any OTHER day, for that matter.

Am I mistaken or did the gentleman show very poor taste? — NO GOLD DIGGER.

Dear No Gold: Obviously the gentleman is vastly more practical than romantic. And he wanted to make sure his gift to you is something you can use and he can afford.

In my opinion he said it awkwardly, but the offer was better than a poke in the eye with a sharp stick.

Dear Ann Landers: All we need from you is a yes or a no. The question I am about to pose has been chewed back and forth in our bridge club for several weeks. The ladies are evenly divided. Here is the question:

Do you approve or disapprove of young male children (aged 5 to 11 years) dancing with their mother, an aunt or other adults on a hotel or night club dance floor? We'd also like to know your reason. Thank you. — BRIDGETTES.

Dear Bridgettes: My answer is strictly on personal opinion and has nothing to do with right or wrong, correct or incorrect. I do not like to see little kids on a public dance floor—dancing with adults OR with each other. Young children are out of place in such an environment. They look like midgets.

Mainland Wedding Of Interest Here

A wedding of wide interest took place at South Burnaby United Church, Burnaby, when Susan Shirley Katherine Peters became the bride of Mr. David George Morris.

Rev. H. M. Irwin performed the double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Peters of Saskatoon, Sask., and the son of Mrs. A. G. Benning, 3240 Richmond Road, Victoria, and Mr. G. W. Morris, Burnaby.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Edward Johnston, chose a street-length gown of peau de soie. Enhanced with lace applique the bouffant-skirted gown was fashioned with scooped neckline and lily-point sleeves. Her four-tiered veil of silk illusion, appliqued with lace and seed pearls, misted to her shoulders from a coronet of seed pearls and sequins. She wore a single strand of pearls and carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Marie Callon, Vancouver, as bridesmaid, was in a street-length gown of pink nylon over taffeta and wore a matching whimsy headpiece. Pink carnations were in her bouquet.

Mr. Ted Fowler, New Westminster, was best man. The bride's travelling ensemble was a two-piece gold brocade frock with white pillbox hat, black patent accessories and a fur jacket.

For their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Morris motored to California. On their return they will make their home in Vancouver.

Paving Big Hope As Army Quits Alaska Highway

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—On April 1, 1946, the Canadian Army took over the U.S. Army responsibility for year-round maintenance of the 1,221 miles of the Alaska Highway that lie in Canadian territory.

This spring the army will turn over this task to the federal works department. For northerners, the significance may be that the army can't ask for money to pave roads—but the works department can.

On March 17-18, 1942, Canada and the U.S. signed an agreement for construction of a highway from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska, a distance of 1,523 miles through some of the most rugged territory in North America.

MILITARY ROAD

The highway—officially, the Northwest Highway System—was built and used strictly for military purposes during the war.

It now has immeasurably more importance as a road to resources and settlement, communications link and tourist attraction. In an average summer, some 30,000 vehicles now pass through Mile 937 (Whitehorse).

Biggest Drug Store Worth $15,000,000

CAMP PETAWAWA, Ont. (CP)—The "biggest drug store in Canada" has a stock worth between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 and a staff of 100 prepared to handle up to 500,000 pounds of drugs and equipment a month.

It's the No. 1 Central Medical Equipment depot at this big military camp 85 miles northwest of Ottawa.

TRI-SERVICE

A tri-service effort, the depot is responsible for medical supplies shipped to Canada's armed forces throughout the world as well as to diplomatic missions, military attaches, UN operations, government agencies, research institutes and foreign aid allotments.

CAREFUL CHECK

"Every single item is carefully checked to guarantee positively that it is sterile and chemically correct," says Lt. Col. W. N. Thurwell, the depot commander.

In addition to checking and shipping such things as pills, bandages, scalpels, forceps, X-ray and sterilizer machines, the depot staff also manufactures some basic ingredients.

SOME DRUGS

"There are some drugs and medicines that come under a joint services formula and these are made right here, as other common solutions," says Col. Thurwell. "We find in some cases it is cheaper to make these ourselves. Other medicaments are not readily available on today's markets, so we manufacture them."

The medical building not only contains the supplies but a chemical laboratory, a huge vaccine freezer, a repair department and a woodworking shop where shipments of drugs are boxed and their destination stencilled prior to departure for such places as Germany, France, Viet Nam, Egypt, Japan and hundreds of other spots occupied either by Canadian troops or diplomats.

Brendel Spins Magic

Pianist 'Second to None' In Symphony Concert

By BERT BINNY

There may have been one or a score of reasons for the extra large audience at the Victoria Symphony orchestra concert on Sunday afternoon but, whatever these reasons were, they certainly came at the right time.

The performance of pianist Alfred Brendel was second to none and far more satisfying than most of those provided by guest artists over quite a few past years.

SHEER MAGIC

Mr. Brendel spins threads of sound with sheer magic and presents a musical tapestry glowing with a myriad of colors, patterned with consummate artistry; vital and realistic.

He played Mozart's piano concerto No. 17 in G major, completed in April of 1784 for a gifted Mozartian pupil, Barbara Ployer, with a sheer loveliness of his interpretation.

Von Weber's Konzertstück for piano and orchestra in F minor is a composition very different in character and mood to the concerto, far more prepossessing, blazing rather than shimmering, demanding rather than suppliant.

ARTISTRY SUPREME

Yet here, too, Mr. Brendel's artistry was supreme and the audience positively refused to let him away without at least one encore. For this he played Schubert's Impromptu in G flat major.

It should be emphasized, nevertheless, that the orchestra—both the little one for Mozart and the big one for Von Weber—made sterling contributions to the successes of the soloist.

Conducted by Otto-Werner Mueller, they provided not only skilled and sensitive but, also unobtrusive support.

In addition they were heard in the Overture to Mozart's opera, Don Giovanni and Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony.

Deputy Minister To Speak Here

Victoria and Island branch of the Agricultural Institute of Canada will hear deputy minister of agriculture A. H. Turner at its annual meeting at the Dominion Hotel, Wednesday, 8 p.m.

Constanze, apparently burned the midnight oil with him and kept him awake by the dubious method of feeding him punch and relating fairy stories. The influence of these measures on the actual music is indiscernible; at any rate it was thus on Sunday afternoon.

The program concluded with Beethoven's Sixth (Pastoral) Symphony, "more an expression of feeling than of painting," as the composer himself noted.

Next concerts fall on Sunday, March 15, at 2 p.m. (NOT 3 p.m.) and Monday, March 16 at 8 p.m. (NOT 8:30 p.m.). The subject will be J. S. Bach's The Passion According to St. Matthew. Details of choral and solo artists will be announced shortly.

Racing Plans Falter

Nanaimo horse racing plans faltered in the stretch in the legislature yesterday.

The select standing committee on private bills announced it has turned down a bid to incorporate Vancouver Island Turf Association, a Nanaimo promotion.

Committee chairman Alex Matthews (SC-Vancouver Centre) said the bill was improperly drawn up—it gave too much authority to too few people.

THREE NAMED

Nine shareholders were provided for, but only three of them were named: F. W. "Bus" Matthews, a former Tory MP; Douglas Skilling, a nephew of Victoria's Walter Skilling, and businessman John Knight.

The group was represented before the committee by Nanaimo lawyer Harold Hine, a brother-in-law of Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

Cyprus May Accept UN Plan for Peace

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—said he believed Archbishop Makarios would approve the compromise resolution worked by Brazil, Morocco, Norway, Bolivia and the Ivory Coast.

The diplomatic efforts to resolve the crisis coincided with reports from Athens telling of joint NATO manoeuvres in the Aegean between ships of the U.S. 6th Fleet and the Turkish Navy. Greek naval units boycotted the manoeuvres, but operated in the Aegean.

Ambassador Carlos Alfredo Bernades of Brazil, who took a leading role in working out the resolution, appealed to council members to support it.

By TERRY HAMMOND

The B.C. government has pledged 100 per cent co-operation to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, Premier Bennett said yesterday.

He made the statement after he and most of the cabinet played host at a Union Club luncheon to commission co-chairmen Andre Laurendeau and Davidson Dunton.

MET PREMIERS

The two commission members were here on the far-western swing of a tour in which they have met the premiers of all but one of the provinces.

Purpose of the tour was to gain pledges of provincial co-operation and open communications with the heads of provincial governments.

In spite of earlier indications that Premier Bennett might not be a staunch supporter of the commission's cause, the meeting apparently went well.

Mr. Dunton and Mr. Laurendeau said Premier Bennett and Education Minister Peterson had "pledged all we wanted."

SPLENDID PEOPLE

The premier in turn referred to his guests as "splendid people."

"If all the goodwill between us today were spread across Canada," he said after the luncheon, "we'd have no problems in this country."

SENSE HUMOR

"What this country needs is a sense of humor and goodwill," he recalled his New Brunswick boyhood where he was brought up with French Canadians, and pointed out to reporters that his first partner in the hardware business had been a French Canadian.

"Do you speak French?" a reporter asked him.

"No, but I can talk a little Dutch at times," he quipped.

Mr. Dunton said it had been obvious during the luncheon that Premier Bennett believes in a stronger confederation.

The cabinet entourage which had joined the premier for lunch had been the largest so far of any province, commission officials said.

CO-OPERATION

The two commissioners said their principal request to provincial governments has been for co-operation in finding to what extent the French language and culture is part of the education system. B.C. had pledged this through Mr. Peterson.

Mr. Laurendeau said he had been surprised at the extent to which French is taught in B.C.

RACE EXTREMISTS

Both commissioners said they had received threatening letters and telephone calls from race extremists since taking up their duties, but they hadn't taken them seriously.

There hadn't been many, and these were about evenly divided between English and French sources.

Mr. Dunton said the usual threat was one of violence, and Mr. Laurendeau said a French writer had branded him "enemy No. 1 of French Canada."

Court Blow-Up

Fireworks Blaze At Ruby Trial

DALLAS (UPI)—Defence attorneys ignited a blazing display of fireworks at Jack Ruby's trial yesterday, demanding in rapid sequence a mistrial, a change of venue and a contempt of court citation for the "white-livered" district attorney.

Judge Joe B. Brown, in turn overruled them, and fined assistant defence attorney Joe H. Tonahill for contempt and threatened chief defence counsel Melvin Belli with more of the same.

BLEW UP

The attorneys for Lee Harvey Oswald's slayer blew up in court and in the judge's chambers as Ruby sat quietly watching and listening while both sides fenced with the delicate job of selecting the final two jurors.

Tonahill could be heard in chambers denouncing as "subversive" the head of a national epilepsy organization who distributed in the corridors pamphlets in defence of epileptics.

Belli shouted in chambers that District Attorney Henry Wade was "white-livered" and should be cited for contempt because they said, he knew of plans to distribute the pamphlets.

The judge kept telling Tonahill to "hush, Joe."

He refused to tell reporters where in Canada police had found him, but there were unconfirmed reports it was in the east.

13 DAYS AGO

Heathman vanished from the Lower Mainland home of an officially-appointed sponsor 12 days ago, and his disappearance was immediately reported to the authorities.

The attorney-general's department issued a search and locate order to RCMP and a continent-wide hunt was launched. There were no instructions to apprehend him.

BEYOND BORDERS

Officials explained then and confirmed yesterday that jurisdiction of the Mental Health Act, under which Heathman was paroled, does not extend beyond the provincial border.

Heathman was twice sentenced to the gallows for the 1960 sex-slaying of 10-year-old Vernon newsboy Donald Otley, and later was set free by the B.C. Appeal Court, which quashed the conviction.

Later he made what was purported to be a full confession to a Vancouver newspaper and

HEATHMAN LOCATED

Charles Heathman has been found "elsewhere in Canada."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner made the announcement in the legislature yesterday.

Heathman, who once confessed to murder and then denied it, is outside the province, Mr. Bonner said later in a corridor interview, and can't be brought back in spite of the fact he broke a B.C. Mental Hospitals Act parole.

In his statement to the House, he said Heathman had been located and was "under surveillance."

He refused to tell reporters where in Canada police had found him, but there were unconfirmed reports it was in the east.

Millions Slated For Atom Subs

LONDON (AP)—Britain is spending $114,000,000 in the next year on Polaris submarines, the House of Commons was told Monday.

John Hay, civil lord of the admiralty, said the keel was laid last week for the first Polaris submarine under a U.S.-British agreement. Four more are planned, he said.

Queen's Midwife Moves In

King Paul Dying?

LONDON (Reuters) — The midwife who will assist in the delivery of Queen Elizabeth's fourth child, expected sometime this month, moved into Buckingham Palace last night.

The court spokesman who made the announcement yesterday said it was "no sudden summons."

"These things are always arranged well in advance," he said.

He added that the midwife, Sister (registered nurse) Helen Rowe, was moving into the palace "according to plan."

King Paul Dying?

Afflicted by blood clots after a stomach operation, King Paul of Greece was reported last night in a worsening condition. A hasty visit to the royal palace by Premier George Papandreu and the wording of medical bulletins raised fears for the life of the 62-year-old monarch.

Unnecessary Risk

Cancel Queen's Quebec Visit Montreal Papers Advise

MONTREAL (CP) — In the week since separatist Marcel Chaput told a Toronto audience Queen Elizabeth's life would be endangered if she visited Quebec as planned this fall, some voices have been raised in the province questioning the wisdom of going ahead with the visit.

Two Montreal newspapers, Le Devoir and La Presse, have said editorially the visit is unnecessary, risks provoking trouble from militant separatists, and ought to be cancelled.

Paul-Emile Robert, president of the Montreal St. Jean Baptiste Society, said in an interview Monday: "It is still too early to say what is the wisest course of action, but it seems at present there is a possible risk of trouble if the visit is held."

Gerard Pelletier, editor-in-chief of La Presse, said also in an interview, "The visit has no character of urgency or necessity and is clearly an act of imprudence. It would create an unnecessary risk of stirring up trouble and exposing the Queen to insult and embarrassment."

POLITICAL BEARING

Le Devoir, in an editorial by Paul Sauriol, said the royal visit "may have a political bearing," since certain people would be counting on a warm welcome to prove that Quebec is loyal to the Crown and to Confederation.

"... In this sense one can speak of provocation, since it is a superfluous and useless celebration. The best thing would be to cancel an event that threatens to be more harm than good."

Crew Didn't Pray — Just Kept Busy

HALIFAX (CP) —The men are religious, but they did not pray—"this would cause panic," said a spokesman for the Halifax fire department.

Capt. Stamatia Plemis explained in broken English Monday how his crew got through a 17-hour period with no assurance of being rescued from the floundering stern of a Liberian tanker.

TWO DIED

Two of them died after the 15,800-ton tanker Amphiklaon broke in two Saturday.

Capt. Plemis, 53, said his 35-member crew had no warning.

"Suddenly the bow of the ship just in front of the bridge, separated from the stern. Sparks flew, and I thought this was the end of everything."

There was no time to send a distress message from the Amphiklaon, carrying fuel oil here from Aruba in the Caribbean. The vessel was 220 miles off Halifax in the midst of pounding waves from a heavy Atlantic storm when she split apart.

The next day — Sunday — an RCMP Argus airplane from Greenwood, N.S., on routine anti-submarine patrol over the North Atlantic, spotted an oil slick.

SAME TIME

At the same time, the crew of the destroyer-escort Athabaskan had just finished Sunday church service, and "a ship with a strange silhouette" was reported.

The Athabaskan raced towards the freezing, hungry men at nearly 30 knots, its top speed.

"It came just in time—another hour, and we would have been ready to give up," said one of the Amphiklaon crew.

La Presse, in an editorial by Vincent Prince, said Mr. Chaput may have exaggerated in saying the Queen's life could be endangered "but no police cordon can stop invective and insults."

Twenty Pieces of Silver

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) —Jacques Schiffer, a fiery New York defence lawyer, wound up his argument at James R. Hoffa's jury-tampering trial Monday by throwing a fistful of coins on the prosecution table.

"Here," he said, while the jurors gaped, "take your 20 pieces of silver and share them. You've earned them."

Schiffer, representing one of five men on trial with Hoffa, obviously was referring to

Judas' betrayal of Christ for 30 pieces of silver. Throughout the trial, Schiffer has declared that Edward G. Partin, a Baton Rouge, La., Teamsters union official, testified against Hoffa to "buy his peace with the government." (See Page 3.)

Government lawyers, who sit a few feet from the jury, refused to have anything to do with the coins. Reporters were allowed to count the dimes, nickels and quarters, which totalled $2.45.

There were only 20 pieces.

Wet Weekend Sees Minor Accident Rash

NANAIMO—A rash of minor accidents in the Nanaimo area over the weekend resulted in two men being sent to hospital and approximately $3,500 damage to 16 cars.

G. Wren was treated and released from Nanaimo Regional Hospital following a two-car collision Saturday at Terminal Avenue and Comox Road. Police estimated damage to his car at $50. Identity of the other driver is not known.

John R. Newall, Cedar, was sent to hospital and treated for a whiplash injury to his neck. He was the driver of a car involved in a collision on the Trans-Canada Highway at Chase River, south of Nanaimo. Driver of the other car, Thomas P. Brunt, was not injured. Damage to the vehicles amounted to $600.

An intersection accident at Irwin and Farquhar Streets caused $1,000 damage to two cars driven by James K. Garrow and J. Woloszewicz, both of Nanaimo. There were no injuries.

Vehicles driven by R. A. Rathlef and H. D. Brown collided at Highway 19 and Bowen Road, causing $700 damage. Again there were no injuries.

ALBERNI—Damage totalled approximately $6,200 but no one was seriously injured in a rash of weekend accidents in the Twin Cities and vicinity.

Some of the mishaps were blamed on slippery road conditions, with heavy rains on Saturday and snow on Sunday.

Heaviest damage was in a head-on sideswipe on Gertrude Street near the Rogers Creek Bridge, when a car driven by David J. Connah and one operated by Leslie Gates crashed to the tune of $2,000. Gates received scratches to his forehead. Police said the accident occurred on Connah's side of the road as he was proceeding south.

DUNCAN—No one was injured in four separate accidents over the weekend and the total damage estimated by police amounted to more than $1,000.

A $500 two-car collision occurred at the intersection of Miller and Koksilah Roads, and drivers involved were Harry Smale of Miller Road and Ben Wolters of Cowichan Station.

Fresh snow on the Malahat was believed to be responsible for another motor accident involving driver Alice Lynn Harper of Duncan. Her car skidded out of control and hit an embankment near the old Shawnigan Lake cut-off. Damage was $200.

Driver in the third traffic mishap on Menzies Road near Cowichan Lake Road was Alexander Erickson of Old Hillcrest Road.

The car left the roadway and landed on its side. Damage was estimated at $200.

Allenby Road near Government Street was the scene of a rear-end collision between a car driven by Digby Robin Kier and an auto driven by Sina Kour Dhillon, both of Victoria. Mr. Kier suffered minor neck injuries. Damage was $125.

LAKE COWICHAN—No one was injured in a two-car head-on collision on Cowichan Lake Road near the village late Saturday.

Police estimated the damage at $300. Driver of the car proceeding towards Lake Cowichan was William Dragan of Lake Cowichan and the Duncan-bound car was driven by Ferdinand Pilon, Esquimalt.

Stove Fire

NANAIMO—An electric stove in the home of J. R. Rivers, 619 Bowen Road, burst into flame Sunday afternoon causing extensive smoke damage to the house.

A neighbor doused the blaze with a fire extinguisher before the Nanaimo fire department arrived.

It is believed the cause of the fire was a short circuit in the wiring of the stove.

IF JOHN JACOB PEABODY HAD LIVED TO BE 123

March 18th, 1864, was the 23rd Birthday of John Jacob Peabody, who looked a bit like Abe Lincoln. It also was the day The Huron & Erie Savings and Loan Society (now Canada Trust-Huron & Erie) began accepting savings and lending money on mortgages.

It was a big day for John Jacob, as it was for us. He inherited what was then considered a fortune—$48,265.00, to be exact. It made him the most sought-after matrimonial prize in Canada West.

Some fair maid must have caught him. No one seems to know what became of him or his money.

But it is fun to speculate that had John Jacob deposited his $48,265.00 with our infant Company and left it to pile up interest... today he would be by far the richest 123-year-old man in the country, with $2,533,183.00 to his credit. Poor John Jacob... The Millionaire That Never Was.

Money still grows, YOU do not have to start with a fortune and live to be 123 in order to build a very tidy sum.

Regular weekly deposits of only $10 in a Canada Trust-Huron & Erie Deposit Account at 4% Interest will add up to $2,900 in five years, $6,400 in ten years. It is a wonderful way to make fond dreams come true... a trip around the world... a big payment on a new home... a shiny sports car... an assured university education for a son or daughter.

Even if you can spare only $1 a week, drop into any one of our offices across Canada and start an account to make your special dream come true.

And if by the sheerest chance your christened name happens to be either John Jacob Peabody or Sarah Matilda Peabody, Canada Trust-Huron & Erie will start you off with a Gift of $500 in memory of The Millionaire That Never Was. The offer expires April 30, 1964.

Esquimalt Wins Final Berth In B.C. High School Meet

Esquimalt grabbed the 16th berth in the B.C. boys' high school basketball championships yesterday afternoon by defeating Mission, 61-51, at Esquimalt in a special playoff.

Esquimalt had finished fourth in the Vancouver Island tournament and Mission was fourth in the Fraser Valley tournament.

IN CONTROL

Slightly behind (47) early in the first quarter, Esquimalt quickly got in front and stayed in control the rest of the way with Barry Burch, Al Lorimer and Bruce Shaw combining for a total of 50 points.

Burch got 21 points, Lorimer 16 and Shaw 13 as Esquimalt's trio got the better of Mission's duo of Duke Neale and Bill Clarke, who got 23 and 15 points, respectively.

THREE TEAMS

Victory for Esquimalt gave the Victoria area three teams, the Dockers joining Victoria and Oak Bay High schools in the final. Courtenay Towhees are the fourth Island team.

Play in the provincial final starts tomorrow morning at 10 at UBC with Victoria meeting Prince George in the first game of the knockout tournament.

TOUGH TASK

Toughest of first-round assignments for the Island quartet faces Oak Bay, who have drawn the Mennonite Educational Institute of Clearbrook, established as co-favorite with Abbotsford. Oak Bay plays at 7:45 p.m. Esquimalt tangles with Vancouver Prince of Wales at 2:30 p.m. and Courtenay takes on Vancouver-Kilmerway at 4 p.m.

Other first-round games are

Prince Rupert vs. Kamloops at 11:30 a.m., Salmo vs. North Sur-

Wharram All-Star Material For Inspiring Scoring Effort

Fame has come late for Ken Wharram, a 30-year-old, 160-pound rightwinger who seemed destined to languish in the minor leagues until the departed Rudy Pilous finally gave him his National Hockey League chance, but it has come with a bang.

Fleet, but little more than a journeyman in his first four NHL seasons as he scored only 54 goals, Wharram barely hinted at things to come last season when he managed to pot the puck 20 times while drawing 18 assists for 38 points.

It was hardly better than fair, playing alongside Stan Mikita (51-45) and Ab McDonald (20-41), and really no warning of what was about to happen. Suddenly doing everything right, Wharram has been a ball of fire in his sixth NHL season. He is a cinch for all-star honors and is threatening teammate Bobby Hull for the goal-scoring championship.

He got into threatening position Sunday night with his 34th, 35th and 36th goals and an assist on Mikita's 34th as Chicago Black Hawks edged out Montreal Canadiens, 4-3, to again tie for the league lead.

It was only the second hat-trick of Wharram's NHL career, both this season, and it left him only one goal behind Hull, held pointless Sunday. Wharram has also 30 assists and his 66 points has him in fourth place in the individual scoring race.

THREE ASSISTS Mikita, who drew assists on all of Wharram's Sunday goals, leads with 80 points. Next came Hull at 74 and Jean Beliveau, pointless on Sunday, at 71.

Sunday's other two games just about removed the last doubts about the order of finish behind the two clubs battling for the championship.

TOUGH TASK New York Rangers remained 10 points behind fourth-place Detroit by being forced to settle for a 2-2 draw with the Red Wings. Rangers have nine games left to make up the five they are behind, an all-but-impossible task.

The point gained by the Wings mathematically eliminated Boston Bruins from playoff contention, leaving the Bean Town club with only an outside chance of edging past Rangers into fifth place.

However, the Bruins made it a weekend double and just about doomed Toronto to third place by defeating the Maple Leafs, 5-3. The Leafs are 13 points behind the co-leaders with but 10 games left.

Watery Ice, Cold Draw Work in Dagg's Favor

CHARLOTTETOWN—A sensational comeback by Lyall Dagg's British Columbia rink, the collapse of the highly-regarded Alberta rink skipped by Ron Northcott and atrocious ice conditions for the opening draw featured the opening day of play in the men's Canadian curling championships on Monday.

When the first two rounds were over, B.C. shared the lead at 2-0 with defending champion Ernie Richardson of Saskatchewan and Art Burke of Prince Edward Island, Alberta and when the sweepers went to work.

"You should get a special medal every time you make a takeout," said Richardson after his opening game.

"It's the heaviest ice I've ever curled on," remarked Bob Manil, skip of the Ontario champions from Hanover. "I was throwing my runner, and sometimes I have a pretty good one, but today I was lucky if I could get it into the house."

WORST EVER

"The worst ice I've ever seen," remarked three-time champion Matt Baldwin of Edmonton, a spectator again.

"I threw what I considered to be my bomb on my last rock and I was lucky to draw in for shot," said Dagg. "It was like putting out of a sand trap full of water."

In any event, Dagg's last shot, which got into the four-foot ring, climaxed one of the bigger comebacks in Brier history.

THE COMEBACK

The B.C. rink trailed by 2-7 after six ends and 3-8 after eight with last rock against. They stole one on the ninth, a pair on the 10th and then another pair on the 11th to tie. They won when Northcott couldn't get Dagg's running draw out.

Saskatchewan opened with an 11-5 win over Bruce Hudson's Manitoba rink and P.E.I. was in control all the way in a 10-4 start over Ian Baird of Nova Scotia.

Ice conditions for the evening draw had been rectified but scoring was even higher.

In the feature game, Dagg made it two in a row by getting by Mann, rated one of the solid threats to the Richardson supremacy. A three on the first end and a steal of two on the sixth for a 7-3 lead proved the difference as Ontario got to 8-7 with a steal of one on the 11th end after the 10th had been blanked.

Saskatchewan eased by Quebec, 13-9, and P.E.I. down by 7-9 after nine ends, stole one on the 11th and two on the 12th to beat Manitoba, 9-7.

Alberta took a 13-9 thumping from Nova Scotia, dropping behind, 6-4, after two ends and having five stolen on the fourth for a 2-10 deficit.

B.C. meets Newfoundland and Northern Ontario today while Saskatchewan takes on P.E.I. in the afternoon after its morning bye. Tomorrow, B.C. plays New Brunswick and has a bye in the evening, while Saskatchewan takes on Alberta and Ontario for a tough double. B.C. and Saskatchewan meet Friday morning in the second-last draw.

Speaking Briefly

Rudolph Halts Golf Nosedive

Mason Rudolph braked his collapsing game with a 28-foot birdie putt on the 71st green Monday and won the $50,000 New Orleans Open golf tournament with a 75 for a 72-hole total of 283. Only a stroke behind were Jack Nicklaus, Juan Rodriguez and Glen Stuart.

Torrential rains which left greens and fairways extremely wet and high winds, made good golf difficult.

Rudolph had a three-stroke lead starting the final 18 holes and just about flubbed it. Nicklaus muffed his chance with a 72 and Stuart three-putted the last green from 12 feet. Rodriguez came storming through the storm with a 67 which just missed.

Rudolph won $7,500 and the three runners-up $3

Kiernan Promises:

Axe Won't Touch Trees
In Buttle
ParklandBy ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoor Editor

Strathcona Park timber along the shores of Buttle Lake won't be logged.

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan gave this assurance in an interview yesterday.

"Nobody is going to log that area," he said.

"What on earth would be the sense of spending $9,000,000 to preserve the area (by clear-cutting and grubbing trees before flooding for hydro purposes) and then negate it all by logging?" he said.

Mr. Kiernan observed that timber along Buttle Lake "is not that mature . . . It would stand for another 100 to 150 years yet."

Seeks Timber Trade

He said his department would step up its park reservation program, but explained that placing a reserve on property doesn't mean it will be immediately developed as a park.

Mr. Kiernan explained his policy with regard to realignment of park boundaries to make wilderness parks more accessible and of more recreation value.

He said he would be prepared to trade timber in non-accessible park areas of little recreation value for other areas of high recreation value.

He indicated he would try to make such a trade to bring Forbidden Plateau area into Strathcona Park.

He didn't say so in as many words, but he indicated that because of its inaccessibility the southwest corner of Strathcona Park where it touches saltwater at Herbert Inlet would make a good area of the park to trade off for more desirable areas.

"It takes a pretty seaworthy boat to get to that area. I wouldn't like to see anybody try it in a 15-foot runabout. That would be inviting trouble," he said.

Deal Already Made

Already part of the park in that area—at adjacent Bedwell River—has been traded off to timber and mining interests for parklands along the beach at Schooner Cove, adjacent to Long Beach.

He explained that Rathrevor Beach near Parkville and Rebecca Spit on Quadra Island were obtained as parks through trades for timber in Wells Gray Park.

He said his department is trying to get some timber stands along the road to Bella Coola where an access could be provided to Tweedsmuir Park. He hoped to get them by effecting a trade for timber in some remote area of the huge park.

Mr. Kiernan's first speech to the legislature as recreation minister touched off a furore when he favored some mining and logging in wilderness parks, but since then he has said conservationists have no need for such alarm.

On the question of multiple use in the large parks he said in the legislature "there tends to be some rather emotional thinking and while it is essential we have a heart, this does not excuse us from the necessity of using our head."

It's Not Conservation

"If there is some particular merit in allowing over-mature trees to fall down and rot, simply because they are in a park area, I fail to comprehend it. Certainly it is not properly described as conservation."

"Where the bulk of the timber in a region has reached senility, it should be harvested, the area cleaned up and reforested and in the harvesting process, provide the access facilities so that as the population grows, we have those healthy, young forested areas for public enjoyment, not decadent fire traps. Under strict control, this can be done to general public benefit."

Yesterday he explained there had been no intention to log Strathcona or Garibaldi parks.

First Donation

Students Pledge
$2,000 to Varsity

By JUDITH BAINES

A $2,000 donation, the first to be pledged to the 1964 University of Victoria development fund drive, will come from the students themselves.

The donation, which was approved by the students' council Sunday night, will be spread over four years and will come out of Alma Mater Society funds.

Students' council president Larry Devlin said: "This money is not a surplus and will represent a sacrifice to the students."

Each student pays a $30 AMS fee, which goes towards sports, club activities, campus publications and payment of the student union building.

"We hope that the donation will indicate the concern of the students for the development of this university and their willingness to join with the citizens of Victoria in ensuring its growth," Mr. Devlin said.

WONDERFUL GESTURE

University development board chairman H. B. Elworthy said: "It's a wonderful gesture."

"The students are setting the pace before we've approached the general public. I'm glad they were first to make a pledge. It gives the campaign a shot in the arm."

Hovercraft to Vancouver
36 Minutes From Nanaimo

NANAIMO — A syndicate of Nanaimo businessmen is awaiting progress reports on present and contemplated Hovercraft services in Britain.

The firm has termed "very promising" economic progress reports from Westland Hovercraft Company.

Frank Ney, a director of the firm, said "the Hovercraft has an excellent future in many parts of the world, including the Nanaimo-Vancouver run. With the fast-expanding growth of Vancouver Island, the Hovercraft can become an integral part of our communications service within the next few years."

An air cushion passenger vehicle would be capable of travelling the 35 nautical miles between Nanaimo and Vancouver in less than 36 minutes. It could seat up to 120 passengers and carry several cars.

The Westland Hovercraft firm said it thought the operation of its vehicles on this run would be "quite feasible," considering the volume of foot traffic using the present facilities.

DURING SUMMER

If the Hovercraft comes into operation between Nanaimo and Vancouver, it would run during the summer season only.

The firm of Nanaimo businessmen will not take further action until a complete study of the progress reports from Britain has been made.

Havoc with Trees

Problem of Spike Heels
Licked, Say Park Men

Women's high heels have been playing havoc with the prepared area around sidewalk trees on downtown Douglas Street, but city parks officials feel they have the problem licked.

A verminicide covering was devised last summer to protect the base of the trees. But passers-by, chiefly those wearing high heels, compacted the covering so that moisture and air couldn't pass through it to the tree roots.

FAST FEW DAYS

City works crews in the past few days have been removing the old covering and replacing it with bricks laid without mortar to allow free passage of air and moisture.

"We think this is the final solution," city parks administrator W. H. Warren said yesterday.

The sidewalk trees—about 40 of them were planted on both sides of Douglas in the heart of the downtown area early last year—are flourishing.

FILL IN GAPS

The program is likely to be extended this year to fill in gaps in the present tree system on Douglas between the Hudson's Bay Co. and Humber Green.

Tree raising under these conditions can sometimes be a matter of trial-and-error.

Silver Bridge Reopened

DUNCAN—Detour signs at the Silver Bridge south of Duncan were removed Monday morning after the renovating job at the Cowichan River span had been completed a few days ahead of the eight-week deadline.

Work started Jan. 6.

It is anticipated another major bridge project in this area, about two miles south of Duncan at the Koksilah River, will start soon.

Plans there call for bridge widening and turning lanes into the Cowichan Bay Road. A detour bridge will be built close to the Koksilah span.

Indians May Help Pay for Centre

Modern Harbor

NANAIMO—The newest style in breakwaters this year is being installed in Chemainus harbor by Nanaimo Filedriving Co. Ltd.

Six eight-foot units, weighing 11,000 pounds each, are being loaded on barges now for delivery to Chemainus.

The units are constructed of expanded plastic billets enclosed in concrete casings made of naturalite, a new harder lightweight product produced at Saturna Island.

These units will be anchored with a new type of alloy chain.

Visiting chiefs and band representatives from up and down the coast expressed their interest in the project at a Soanans hall meeting of West Coast Allied Tribes, at which president Jack Peter was chairman and Sheehah Chief Tom Gus, host.

INVITED GUESTS

Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni and Mayor Fred Bishop, Alberni, were among invited guests, outlining their hopes for the centre to provide a social gathering place and counselling service for Indians coming to the twin cities from isolated areas.

When Mayor Hammer, who originated the idea, proposed that city councils could give leadership but the Indians themselves must be willing to work for the centre, Colin S. Wilson, past president of the local NDP organization, declared the Indians should take the lead, showing they have the qualities to do so.

Chief Gus emphasized that the centre could be something more than a social gathering place.

"It could be a place where people coming from out-of-the-way communities could receive counselling. If they are to find jobs they must mingle with the people who are here and working," he said.

He questioned assistant agency superintendent Wally Easton on whether it would be in order to vote bond funds for the project. He received an affirmative answer.

IN FAVOR

Among those who indicated they were in favor of the centre were Chief Sam Adams of the Eshkashat band, Esperanza; Pat Murphy, Nootka; Ambrose Maquima, Nootka's hereditary chief; William Dennis, Ojibwa; Webster Thompson, Nishnabek; Kelly Cook, Kildonan; Chief Sam Touchie, Ucluelet; Bennett Andrews, Hesquiat; Mark Atleo, Ahousat.

On motion of Alex McCarthy, Ucluelet council member and director of the West Coast Allied Tribes, it was agreed that chiefs and councillors should meet in the near future to discuss plans for participation in the project.

RECENT VISIT

Mrs. Keitha Adams told of a recent visit to Vancouver's Friendship Centre.

"The more I consider the local plan, the more advantages I can see in it," she said. Chief Gus and Peter both indicated that they are in favor of Bill C130, which, if passed by Parliament, would set up an Indians' Land Claims Commission.

While Mr. Peters suggested that a lawyer's advice should be sought to help clarify the bill, Chief Gus was unequivocal in his support.

"It's for your good," he told the delegates. "There is a land claim commission in the United States and the Indian people there have collected millions of dollars. A lot of you people have had your lands cut off. You lost your land years ago. You can put in your claims when a commission has been formed, not before."

Rona Modeste, zone representative on the B.C. Special Advisory Council, was a guest speaker.

MISSED OUT

He told the meeting that in the past Island tribes may have missed out on their fair share of the B.C. Special, the $100,000 annual grant to B.C. Indians in lieu of treaty money. At a recent meeting of the advisory board it was unanimously agreed that the money should be divided on a per capita basis, to be administered at the agency level.

Attending the meeting with Mr. Modeste were Chief Mike Underwood, Duncan; Chief Wilson, Bob, Cowichan, and Chief Ed Underwood, Saanich.

Garbage
Rates
Boosted

NANAIMO—For the first time since 1952, city council last night approved an increase in garbage collection rates—from $9 to $12 a year.

Council was told by Ald. George Bryce the collection department had been operating at a deficit for several years.

In 1963 the deficit was $10,700, and the predicted deficit for 1964 (without any rate increase) was $12,500. Planned purchase of a new, larger garbage unit for $2,250 would have pushed the deficit to $21,750.

FACT REACHED

Agreement was announced, following negotiations, between the city's labor relations committee and the International Association of Fire Fighters, Local 905.

Agreement will be effective from March 15 this year to Dec. 31, 1965. It calls for a five per cent wage increase effective March 15; a further four per cent increase on Jan. 1, 1965; four weeks' holiday with pay after 18 years service, and other considerations.

Soviet Spies Nabbed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Information provided by a Polish defector has led to the arrest of some important Soviet-bloc agents operating against the U.S., it was learned Monday.

The defector is Michal Goleniewski, 41, a Polish-born agent who came to the United States in 1961. He had been in contact with U.S. intelligence agents in Poland since 1958.

In some cases it was learned information supplied by the defector resulted in the arrests of important Soviet agents.

The New York Journal-American reported Monday that a Soviet secret police defector by the name of Michal Goleniewski has informed U.S. officials that Moscow has placed active "cells" in the Central Intelligence Agency and the state department. It was learned, however, that information in the Journal-American story was not consistent with information the defector had given the U.S.

Cyprus May Accept UN Plan for Peace

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — said he believed Archbishop Makarios would approve the compromise resolution worked by Brazil, Morocco, Norway, Bolivia and the Ivory Coast.

The diplomatic efforts to resolve the crisis coincided with reports from Athens telling of joint NATO manoeuvres in the Aegean between ships of the U.S. 6th Fleet and the Turkish Navy. Greek naval units boycotted the manoeuvres, but operated in the Aegean.

Ambassador Carlos Alfredo Bernardes of Brazil, who took a leading role in working out the resolution, appealed to council members to support it.

Bicultural Luncheon Plenty of Goodwill

The B.C. government has pledged 100 per cent co-operation to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, Premier Bennett said yesterday.

He made the statement after he and most of the cabinet played host at a Union Club luncheon to commission co-chairmen Andre Laurendeau and Davidson Dunton.

MET PREMIERS
The two commission members were here on the far-western swing of a tour in which they have met the premiers of all but one of the provinces.

Purpose of the tour was to gain pledges of provincial co-operation and open communications with the heads of provincial governments.

In spite of earlier indications that Premier Bennett might not be a staunch supporter of the commission's cause, the meeting apparently went well. Mr. Dunton and Mr. Laurendeau said Premier Bennett and Education Minister Peterson had "pledged all we wanted."

SPLENDID PEOPLE
The premier in turn referred to his guests as "splendid people."

"If all the goodwill between us today were spread across Canada," he said after the luncheon, "we'd have no problems in this country."

SENSE HUMOR
"What this country needs is a sense of humor and goodwill," he recalled his New Brunswick boyhood where he was brought up with French Canadians, and pointed out to reporters that his first partner in the hardware business had been a French Canadian.

"Do you speak French?" a reporter asked him.

LITTLE DUTCH
"No, but I can talk a little Dutch at times," he quipped. Mr. Dunton said it had been obvious during the luncheon that Premier Bennett believed in a stronger confederation.

The cabinet entourage which had joined the premier for lunch had been the largest so far of any province, commission officials said.

CO-OPERATION
The two commissioners said their principal request to provincial governments has been for co-operation in finding to what extent the French language and culture is part of the education system. B.C. had pledged this through Mr. Peterson.

Mr. Laurendeau said he had been surprised at the extent to which French is taught in B.C.

RACE EXTREMISTS
Both commissioners said they had received threatening letters and telephone calls from race extremists since taking up their duties, but they hadn't taken them seriously.

TWO DAYS ON LOG

TOFINO — A Vancouver man was found chilled but unhurt yesterday, after spending two days drifting in the sea astraddle a log. William Young, a catering contractor, left Bedwell River, 20 miles from here, at 4 p.m. Saturday, and his disappearance was confirmed reports it was in the east.

log and sank. He reached another floating log and hung on—all night Saturday, all day Sunday and part of Monday.

The Tofino lifeboat crew was notified by Young's wife when he did not return Monday. The crew found Young drifting in Cypress Bay. Hospital officials in Tofino say he is suffering from cold and exposure, but is not seriously hurt.

Heathman Located

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

Charles Heathman has been found "elsewhere in Canada."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner made the announcement in the legislature yesterday.

Heathman, who once confessed to murder and then denied it, is outside the province, Mr. Bonner said later in a corridor interview, and can't be brought back in spite of the fact he broke a B.C. Mental Hospitals Act parole.

In his statement to the House, he said Heathman had been located and was "under surveillance."

He refused to tell reporters where in Canada police had found him, but there were unconfirmed reports it was in the east.

15 DAYS AGO
Heathman vanished from the Lower Mainland home of an officially-appointed sponsor 12 days ago, and his disappearance was immediately reported to the authorities.

The attorney-general's department issued a search and locate order to RCMP and a continent-wide hunt was launched. There were no instructions to apprehend him.

BEYOND BORDERS
Officials explained then and confirmed yesterday that jurisdiction of the Mental Health Act, under which Heathman was paroled, does not extend beyond the provincial border.

Heathman was twice sentenced to the gallows for the 1960 sex-slaying of 10-year-old Vernon newsboy Donald Otley, and later was set free by the B.C. Appeal Court, which quashed the conviction.

Later he made what was purported to be a full confession to a Vancouver newspaper and

Queen's Midwife Moves In

LONDON (Reuters) — The midwife who will assist in the delivery of Queen Elizabeth's fourth child, expected some time this month, moved into Buckingham Palace last night.

The court spokesman who made the announcement yesterday said it was "no sudden summons."

"These things are always arranged well in advance," he said.

He added that the midwife, Sister (registered nurse) Helen Rowe, was moving into the palace "according to plan."

Good Fairies at Work

TORONTO (CP) — George Hache doesn't know whether he's more flattered or amazed.

A postcard arrived for him four days after it was mailed in Ireland, bearing no address except his name — spelled incorrectly — and his street name — also spelled incorrectly.

King Paul Dying?

Afflicted by blood clots after a stomach operation, King Paul of Greece was reported last night in a worsening condition. A hasty visit to the royal palace by Premier George Papandreu and the wording of medical bulletins raised fears for the life of the 62-year-old monarch.

In Argentine

Accused Nazi Nabbed

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — An accused Nazi war criminal charged with complicity in the "mercy killings" of 15,000 persons during the Second World War has been arrested here and now faces extradition to West Germany.

An Argentine police spokesman reported Monday that Dr. Bernhard Böhme, who fled West Germany after he was released from pre-trial detention on health grounds last summer, was arrested Thursday in a Buenos Aires suburb not far from where he had been living with his sister.

West German embassy press attache Gerald Dohms told reporters the embassy requested Böhme's extradition "several weeks ago."

Unnecessary Risk

Cancel Queen's Quebec Visit Montreal Papers Advise

MONTREAL (CP) — In the week since separatist Marcel Chaput told a Toronto audience Queen Elizabeth's life would be endangered if she visited Quebec as planned this fall, some voices have been raised in the province questioning the wisdom of going ahead with the visit.

Two Montreal newspapers, Le Devoir and La Presse, have said editorially the visit is unnecessary, risks provoking trouble from militant separatists, and ought to be cancelled.

Paul-Emile Robert, president of the Montreal St-Jean Baptiste Society, said in an interview Monday: "It is still too early to say what is the wiser course of action, but it seems at present there is a possible risk of trouble if the visit is held."

Gerard Pelletier, editor-in-chief of La Presse, said also in an interview: "The visit has no character of urgency or necessity and is clearly an act of imprudence. It would create an unnecessary risk of stirring up trouble and exposing the Queen to insult and embarrassment."

POLITICAL BEARING
Le Devoir, in an editorial by Paul Sauriol, said the royal visit "may have a political bearing," since certain people would be counting on a warm welcome to prove that Quebec is loyal to the Crown and to Confederation.

"... In this sense one can speak of provocation, since it is a superfluous and useless celebration. The best thing would be to cancel an event that threatens to be more harm than good."

La Presse, in an editorial by Vincent Prince, said Mr. Chaput may have exaggerated in saying the Queen's life could be endangered "but no police cordon can stop invective and insults."

Crew Didn't Pray —Just Kept Busy

HALIFAX (CP) — The men are religious, but they did not pray—"this would cause panic," said either this would cause panic worse. We just kept busy."

Capt. Stamatis Polemis explained in broken English Monday how his crew got through a 17-hour period with no assurance of being rescued from the floundering stern of a Liberian tanker.

TWO DIED
Two of them died after the 15,800-ton tanker Amphilos broke in two Saturday.

Capt. Polemis, 53, said his 35-member crew had no warning.

"Suddenly the bow of the ship just in front of the bridge, separated from the stern. Sparks flew, and I thought this was the end of everything."

There was no time to send a distress message from the Amphilos, carrying fuel oil here from Aruba in the Caribbean. The vessel was 220 miles off Halifax in the midst of pounding waves from a heavy Atlantic storm when she split apart.

The next day — Sunday — an RCAF Argus airplane from Greenwood, N.S., on routine anti-submarine patrol over the North Atlantic, spotted an oil slick.

SAME TIME
At the same time, the crew of the destroyer-escort Athabaskan had just finished Sunday church service, and "a ship with a strange silhouette" was reported.

The Athabaskan raced towards the freezing, hungry men at nearly 30 knots, its top speed.

"It came just in time—another hour, and we would have been ready to give up," said one of the Amphilos crew.

Twenty Pieces of Silver

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Jacques Schiffer, a fiery New York defence lawyer, wound up his argument at James R. Hoffa's jury-tampering trial Monday by throwing a fistful of coins on the prosecution table.

"Here," he said, while the jurors gaped, "take your 30 pieces of silver and share them. You've earned them."

Schiffer, representing one of five men on trial with Hoffa, obviously was referring to

Judas' betrayal of Christ for 30 pieces of silver. Throughout the trial, Schiffer has declared that Edward G. Partin, a Baton Rouge, La., Teamsters union official, testified against Hoffa to "buy his peace with the government." (See Page 3.)

Government lawyers, who sit a few feet from the jury, refused to have anything to do with the coins. Reporters were allowed to count the dimes, nickels and quarters, which totalled $2.45.

There were only 20 pieces.
